

Mob credited with finding gems

Abortion restrictions invalidated

NEW YORK (AP) — An FBI official says organized crime may have played a major role in the return of nearly all of the rare jewels stolen less than two weeks ago from a Roman Catholic shrine in Brooklyn.

Two diamond-studded gold crowns, four diamond stars and a cluster of diamonds were found Sunday afternoon in a coin locker at the East Side Airlines Terminal in Manhattan.

The tip came from an anonymous "gruff-speaking" man who called the FBI office in Manhattan asking by name for the agent working on the heist of jewels Jan. 10 from the Regina Pacis Votive Shrine of St. Rosalia's Church.

"We believe organized crime may have been instrumental in recovering the jewels," said John F. Malone, director of the FBI's New York office. "That doesn't mean that organized crime was responsible for stealing it. But we believe that they may have played a major part in recovering it."

A diamond earring, a diamond necklace and a diamond bracelet were still missing. The jewels are insured for $100,000 but parishioners say they are worth many times that amount.

City police four days earlier had arrested and charged two unemployed construction workers and a 17-year-old girl with grand larceny and burglary in the theft. No organized crime help was received, police said.

Many reputed underworld figures are parishioners of the church in the Borough Park section of Brooklyn, including Don Carlos Gambino, described by authorities as the "boss of bosses."

The incident recalled a similar theft in 1952. The shrine jewels were mysteriously returned that time also, reportedly after word was put out that underworld leader Joseph Profaci wanted them back.

Much sentimental value has been attached to the jewels, placed on the shrine to peace created by parishioners shortly after World War II. Now the jewels are expected to be removed from permanent public display and placed in a vault.

"We'll never again put them back where they were," said the Rev. Anthony F. LoGatto, pastor of St. Rosalia's. "It's too much of a temptation."

4 gunmen give up after siege

By Bob Monroe
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Four gunmen who had vowed to die for Muslim paradise in a hail of police bullets have surrendered peacefully after their nine remaining hostages made a dramatic escape to signal the end of a two-day siege in a Brooklyn sporting goods store.

The end came late Sunday afternoon, over 47 hours after a silent robbery alarm alerted police who surprised the young gunmen in the store. One patrolman was killed and two others wounded in a flurry of gunfire.

After the initial shootout subsided to a standoff, police ringed John & Al's Sports, Inc., in Brooklyn's Williamsburg section with sharpshooters. But fear for the hostages prevented any forced showdown and police concentrated on keeping communications with the gunmen.

The break came shortly before 1 p.m. Sunday when the hostages, led by a co-owner of the store, broke through plasterboard to a sealed off stairway and escaped to the roof while the gunmen were diverted.

Four hours later, following more negotiations with police and pleas from some relatives, the gunmen walked out. Two carried a stretcher with a third who was wounded and the fourth walked ahead.

Police said preliminary reports indicated their marksmen had not fired a shot since the original gunbattle, although the gunmen had fired volleys from time to time.

Police identified the four by their

Midweek indicated for initialing of accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — As captured enemy documents signaled a midweek initialing of a cease-fire accord, Henry A. Kissinger flew back to Paris today to join allied and Communist officials in the last steps toward ending the Vietnam war.

Before the presidential assistant left rain-swept Andrews Air Force Base at mid-morning, he met with President Nixon for an hour at the White House to get last-minute instructions.

Kissinger met with President Nixon for an hour today in preparation for the negotiator's departure for nearby Andrews Air Force Base and the flight to Paris.

Officially, the White House continued to portray the purpose of Kissinger's return to the French capital as "completing the text of an agreement" to end the fight.

But a flurry of developments Sunday bolstered the belief that an agreement soon will be signed, calling for a cease-fire, the return of prisoners of war, and machinery to reshape the South Vietnamese government. The major developments:

—Senior South Vietnamese officials said captured documents from the Communist high command stated that an agreement will be initialed at 8 a.m. EST Wednesday, that it will be formally signed on Saturday and that a cease-fire will go into effect on Sunday, Jan. 28.

—While shying away from specific dates, Washington sources indicated that Nixon has set a goal of wrapping up the Vietnam agreement this week and that, barring unexpected snags, the President is confident of hitting that target.

—South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam told an interviewer as he departed for Paris that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will be in Saigon on Jan. 28, presumably to demonstrate that Washington and Saigon were entering the post-war era shoulder-to-shoulder.

—Agnew himself said he couldn't answer when asked whether he will be heading for Saigon, saying the President would have to make "that announcement."

—Congressional sources reported that Nixon plans a meeting with Capitol Hill leaders within the next few days, providing him a forum to brief them on details of a peace accord.

—The Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, arrived in Paris and said the Communists are ready to "do everything possible to achieve a quick settlement." But, she said, "everything depends on the United States." Mrs. Binh said the proposed agreement offers the United States "an honorable way out of its dirty war."

Parochial aid tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a 1972 New York law providing various forms of assistance to parochial schools and the parents of children attending them.

Two provisions of the law were struck down as constitutionally invalid last October by a federal district court in New York City. A third provision was upheld by the panel.

The Supreme Court, acting on appeals, agreed to consider all three provisions beginning with a hearing in April.

The high court already has under consideration a 1970 state law appropriating $28 million a year for record-keeping, testing and other services in the nonpublic schools.

About 750,000, or 18 per cent of all school-children in New York state, attend nonpublic schools. Most of these schools are Roman Catholic.

The cases accepted by the Supreme Court for review involve:

1. Allowing families with gross incomes of up to $25,000 a year and who pay at least $50 a year in tuition to parochial schools to exclude as much as $3,000 from their state income tax. (This provision was upheld in the district court, 2 to 1.)

2. Providing about 220 parochial schools in densely populated urban areas with as much as $4 million a year in all for heat, lights, custodial services, and the like. (This provision was struck down unanimously by the district court as in violation of the First Amendment's prohibition establishment of religion).

3. Direct payments of $50 an elementary pupil and $100 a high school pupil for parents with net taxable incomes of less than $5,000 a year. (This provision also was struck down unanimously as in violation of the establishment clause.)

Twenty-two cars of a 75-car Soo Line Railroad freight train bound for Chicago were derailed about 10 p.m. Sunday along Harrison Street near the Byrd Avenue crossing, about a mile south of Neenah. No one was injured, but several cars were overturned, according to Soo

Death toll could reach 191 in Nigerian crash

KANO, Nigeria (AP) — A Jordanian jetliner bringing 202 Moslems home from a pilgrimage to Mecca crashed on landing in a fog here today and burst into flames. Officials said most were killed.

The death toll was variously given as 162 and 191 as rescue teams went through the burned wreckage. Radio Nigeria reported about 40 survivors, but officials here said they have recovered 11 persons alive.

A witness said the plane was engulfed in flames after it crashed on the runway at about 10 a.m.

Army troops, police, firemen and health workers were called in to help search for bodies and survivors and to clear the wreckage.

Airport officials said the plane's captain and three crewmen were reported among the survivors but all were seriously injured.

Officials said the plane was to have landed in Lagos, Nigeria's capital, but was diverted to Kano because of bad weather.

Thousands of Nigerians poured into the tiny airport, wailing and shouting their grief over the dead, most of whom were believed to be Nigerians.

The airport is five miles from the center of Kano, a city famous for its links with Islamic culture and its traditional market place.

The world's worst air disaster took the lives of 176 persons in the crash of a Soviet Aeroflot jet near Moscow last Oct. 14.

Mecca, the holiest place of Moslems, is in Saudi Arabia.

The Royal Jordanian Airlines Boeing 707 left Saudi Arabia from Jidda, near Mecca, on the 2,100-mile flight to Kano.

Officials in Lagos, 730 miles south of Kano, said communications with Kano were down and for this reason R. A. B. Dikko, Nigeria's Commissioner of transport, was flying to the scene of the crash at Kano's airport.

These officials said it was not likely that a full report on the crash will be available before Tuesday.

Wisconsin is expected to be affected by the ruling.

Blackmun, speaking for the majority, rejected the idea that a pregnant woman has "an absolute constitutional right to an abortion on her demand." But, he said, the decision on whether to end a pregnancy before the fetus becomes viable—before the 24th to 28th week—is one best left to the woman and her personal physician.

In the first three months, Blackmun said, the decision and the way it is carried out must left to them. In the second three months, he said, all the state may do is to regulate the abortion procedures in ways that "are reasonably related to maternal health" such as making sure they are performed by licensed doctors and licensed clinics and hospitals.

Justice Blackmun said medical data indicates that abortion in the first three months "although not without its risks, is now relatively safe."

Therefore, he said, "any interest of the state in protecting the woman from an inherently hazardous procedure ... has largely disappeared."

The ruling followed two years of deliberations by the justices. It was based predominantly on what Blackmun called a right of privacy. He said the right "is broad enough to encompass a woman's decision whether or not to terminate her pregnancy."

Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissented. White said he could "find nothing in the language or history of the Constitution to support the court's judgment."

Rehnquist, meanwhile, said "the court's sweeping invalidation of any restrictions on abortion during the first trimester is impossible to justify."

In a second 7 to 2 ruling, the court struck down Georgia's abortion law, finding three provisions to be unconstitutional. They were that in the first three months the operation be performed in an accredited hospital, that a medical committee must give its approval and that two physicians must concur with the woman's own physician that the pregnancy should be terminated.

Blackmun said the "interposition of a hospital abortion committee is unduly restrictive of the patients' rights."

Summarized, the court held:

1. The states are barred from restricting abortions within the first three months.

2. In this period the abortion decision must be left to the medical judgment of the pregnant woman's own physician.

3. After the first three months the state, if it chooses, may regulate abortion procedures "in ways that are reasonably related to maternal health."

4. In approximately the last three months of pregnancy, the state may if it chooses, regulate and even prohibit abortions to preserve the expectant mother's life or health.

5. The state may allow only licensed physicians to perform abortions and may prohibit abortions by nonphysicians.

Blackmun wound up his 51-page opinion with these remarks:

"This holding, we feel, is consistent with the relative weights of the respective interests involved, with the lessons and example of medical and legal history, with the lenity of the common law, and with the demands of the profound problems of the present day."

"The decision leaves the states free to place increasing restrictions on abortion as the period of pregnancy lengthens, so long as those restrictions are tailored to the recognized state interests."

"The decision vindicates the right of the physician to administer medical treatment according to his professional judgment up to the points where important state interests provide compelling justifications for intervention."

"Up to those points the abortion decision in all its aspects is inherently and primarily a medical decision, and basic responsibility for it must rest with the physician."

Justice White, in dissent today, called the ruling "an exercise of raw judicial power." He said the judgment was "improvident and extravagant" and that the court had "scarcely any reason or authority for its action."

It's the wrong man

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Police at Birkerød, north of Copenhagen, are looking for a man who sneaked into a house at night and had sexual relations with a woman who thought he was her husband.

The 46-year-old woman said she did not discover her mistake until the intruder was climbing out of bed again and she discovered her husband snoring in the other bed, police said.

Her shrieks woke up the husband and their three children, but the man got away.

Police are treating the matter as a case of rape although the woman admitted that she willingly submitted and had no complaints until she discovered that her bedmate was a stranger.

However, the police said the man could be charged with violating an ancient Danish law that provides for up to four years imprisonment for "striking a woman into the act of love by pretending to be her wedded husband."

Boy buried, chained, assaulted

NANSEMOND, Va. (AP) — Police in two states today sought a man with a history of sex crimes after a 13-year-old boy who was held eight days in a wooden box was found by rabbit hunters.

"If it hadn't been for four rabbit hunters, I doubt if anyone ever would have found the boy," said Police Sgt. S. B. Chapman.

The boy was discovered Friday in a large wooden box buried in the ground. Police said he had been kept chained and had been sexually assaulted.

Richard W. Ausley, 32, a Portsmouth carpenter and a prison parolee, was named in warrants charging him with abduction and sexual assault. Ausley was being sought in southeastern Virginia and northeastern North Carolina, but had not been found early today.

Police said Ausley, paroled in 1971 after serving a prison term on a similar charge, was an "accomplished woodsman" and might have fled into the vast Dismal Swamp, a 300-square-mile area of heavily wooded swampland in the two states.

Chapman described Ausley as "armed and very dangerous."

Four rabbit hunters told police they were at the dead end of a logging road in a remote area Friday morning when they saw a boy's head suddenly rise up out of a six-foot mound of earth.

Police said the boy began crying, then explained he had been kidnapped by a man who picked him up on a Portsmouth street and asked him if he wanted some work helping move furniture.

The boy had a chain attached to his left leg and the chain was secured to a nail driven in the side of the plywood box. Police said the box had been meticulously built, was six feet long, four feet wide and five feet deep with enough room for two people.

The box was covered with earth and leaves and contained various survival items, including food and water.

The boy told police he had been beaten and sexually assaulted repeatedly in the eight days he was held prisoner. He was released to his parents after treatment at a local hospital for a broken nose, a broken tooth and facial injuries.

The boy told police that the last time he saw his abductor was about 8 p.m. Thursday — 12 hours before he was found.

On Jan. 11, the day of the alleged abduction, Ausley was scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing in Portsmouth Juvenile Court on a sexual assault charge involving another boy about the same age. He did not show up, police said.

Ausley also was charged with failure to report to the probation officer supervising his parole from the State Penitentiary on a 1961 charge in Suffolk of kidnapping and sexually assaulting a 10-year-old boy, police said. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison and was released on parole last November.

Today's Woman . . .

. . . is a working woman. Contrary to the portrayal on television commercials, today's woman is not likely to be discussing "white" wash over the back fence or waiting for someone to ring the doorbell with her perfume and bath oil. Nearly half of today's women are working, and those in the home are scarcely sitting around manicuring their fingernails. They are less restricted, more enlightened and more involved . . . in clubs, civic affairs, campaigns, social projects and the like. Obviously, today's woman has little time to spend watching TV, listening to the radio or reading magazines. Today, she relies more than ever on the medium which she can peruse at her own time and at her own convenience . . . the daily newspaper. As to working women away from home, an independent source—W. R. Simmons—shows working women spend roughly half as much time watching TV during the day as when not working and 10% less time at night than formerly. No wonder the newspaper is the advertising medium which provides the maximum influence, most consistently, in her buying decisions.

Pat holds family Bible

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pat Nixon held a family Bible open to Isaiah's words about converting swords into plowshares as her husband took the oath of office for his second term in the White House.

She wasn't visibly shivering but a 17-mile-an-hour wind, cloudy skies and 40-degree weather had everyone else on and off the inaugural platform chilled.

Mrs. Nixon wore a light wool coat over the green dress to the swearing-in ceremonies. Unlike the President, who changed clothes after a cold ride downtown, Mrs. Nixon wore the same outfit while reviewing the one-hour-and-15-minute parade.

She told reporters her favorite of the parade was the massed band of 1,976 members from 20 Fairfax County high schools in nearby Virginia.

"They were so wonderful. They got together and not one was out of step and they had the real spirit of 1976," Mrs. Nixon said.

During the ceremony at the Capitol, Mrs. Nixon and her daughters Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox listened intently to Nixon's second inaugural address. Tricia helped to lead the applause time after time.

The first lady and the widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower shared several short conversations during the inaugural ceremony and Mamie Eisenhower nodded approvingly as Nixon finished his oath of office.

With Tricia was her husband, Ed Cox. Julie was attentive both at the inaugural and the parade review to her mother-in-law, saying that she was substituting for her husband David Eisenhower, who chose to take leave from his Navy assignment for the election rather than the inaugural.

The two generations of Eisenhower wives, Mamie and Julie, shared one limousine and the Coxes were in another, both of them open convertibles, which followed the Nixons'.

Mamie Eisenhower was rubbing her arms vigorously to warm up when she stepped out onto the White House lawn after the 38-minute open-air drive. Julie looked slightly rumpled, with the strong winds having tangled her long, dark curls. Tricia, wearing her blonde hair twisted intricately behind her head, didn't appear ruffled at all.

It took only 15 minutes for the Nixons to walk out a wooden corridor built over the White House lawn to the glass-encased and heated reviewing stand. Mamie Eisenhower was the only one who sat down during most of the parade; she got up for all the flags and clapped especially hard for the West Point band.

Saturday night out was a Nixon family affair. At left, all that glittered went into the making of Mrs. Nixon's inaugural ball gown. The First Couple took to the dance floor at each of the

Ann Landers

Sex life is better for some

Dear Ann Landers: I know you are a conscientious person and that you make every effort to give realistic and correct advice, but on occasion you are unable to meet your own standards because you have not lived through the problem and neither have your consultants. (Mostly male, I'm sure.) I refer specifically to your comments to the 42-year-old woman who had had a hysterectomy and said the operation had seriously damaged her sex life. I've been there and I can tell you that woman spoke the truth.

At age 44, I had a total hysterectomy. I don't know exactly how to describe it, but it's like losing your appetite (which was once very lusty) and having to force yourself to eat. You can get the food down all right, but the pleasure is gone.

Please, Ann, take the word of someone who knows.—Grateful For A Good Memory

Dear Grateful: Your letter was one of many from women who said the same thing. More women, however, wrote as this one did. Please read on:

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the woman who had a hysterectomy at 42, and signed her letter "The Thrill Is Gone." I had a hysterectomy two years ago at 40 and I am signing my letter "Better Than Ever." For eight years before the operation I was plagued by female problems and a fear of pregnancy. I had had five children, closely spaced, and I spent half my time in the doctor's examining room.

My gynecologist assured me that my sex life would be the same as before. He told me about the pills that would replace the hormonal loss which every woman experiences when she has her ovaries removed. He spent an hour explaining exactly what the operation was all about. I will never forget his words, "You will feel better, look better and do better after the surgery."

He went on to tell me that many women dread a hysterectomy because they view it as the end of their "womanliness." Others think of the operation as a convenient excuse to avoid marital sex (which they never enjoyed anyway).

I concluded that the problem in most instances is psychological and a good doctor can help immensely by counseling in advance and giving the woman reassurance. My doctor, bless him, was willing to spend the time to educate me.

I am now 42 and enjoying marital relations more than I have in 15 years. The thrill is not gone for me. It is—Better Than Ever

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 20, and to use an expression that will surely date me, he is tall, dark and handsome. The problem is insignificant compared to many you receive, but it has turned our dinner table conversation into a debating society.

Resolved: Should Jim grow a beard? His girl says "No." His older brother says "Yes!" His dad says, "It would look terrible. You have enough hair as it is." I say, "Do as you please and stop talking about it." Jim is undecided. We've agreed to send two pictures of Jim to Ann Landers—one with a beard drawn on, another clean-shaven, as he is now. Please vote yes or no. Thank you.—Tribal Counsel

Dear Tribe: After looking at the pictures, I vote no. I agree with Jim's father. He has enough hair as it is.

Preventing accidents

Probably the most effective way to prevent accidents, points out the Institute, is for a responsible person to be always present when there are young children at home. If you have to leave the house and there is no one at home to take care of a child, by all means take him or her with you. Never leave a young child alone at home.

North thought he was joking, but astoundingly enough South did make his contract by ruffing a club in the dummy.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. South ruffed, drew two rounds of trumps and then took the ace and king of hearts.

Declarer's next step was to lead a low heart. If the two missing hearts were evenly divided, South could safely ruff in dummy.

West could not gain by discarding. Dummy would ruff, and South would ruff a diamond to regain the lead. South would then draw the last trump and cash the queen and another heart. At the end, South would give up two club tricks.

West saw all this and therefore ruffed the third heart with the jack of spades. South discarded the deuce of clubs from the dummy, beginning his campaign to shorten dummy's clubs.

West led a third diamond, and South ruffed with his last trump. Now South cashed the queen and six of hearts, discarding two more clubs from the dummy.

This left dummy with only one club and with the nine of spades to ruff South's second club. Would you have believed it possible?

ANSWER: Bid one club. If partner bids two clubs, you will pass, and if he bids one diamond, you will raise to two diamonds. If you opened the bidding with one diamond and partner responded two clubs, you would have to bid three clubs—a decided overbid with your minimum values.

Shirley Temple Black's story subject of suit

NEW YORK — McCall's magazine, which carries Shirley Temple Black's exclusive and personal account of her battle against breast cancer in the February issue released last Wednesday, instituted a suit Tuesday in New York Federal Court against Warner Communications, Inc. and its subsidiaries, which publish and distribute Coronet magazine, to require the immediate discontinuance of the distribution, sale and promotion of the February issue of Coronet which features an allegedly exclusive cover story entitled "Exclusive: My Battle With Breast Cancer: what I'd like every woman to know Shirley Temple Black."

McCall's contends in its suit that Coronet has falsely represented that its February issue carries an exclusive story by Mrs. Black and relies on an affidavit by Mrs. Black in support of the charges.

"I have never agreed to write nor have I written my story for Coronet magazine concerning the circumstances surrounding my illness or operation," Mrs. Black's affidavit reads in part.

Her affidavit further states: "... in late November, 1972, I did agree to write a personal account of my experience with breast cancer and my reaction to it for McCall's because I believed that this nationally circulated women's magazine could bring my story to many women ... My story in the February issue of McCall's is the only personal account of the circumstances surrounding my illness and operation which I have authorized."

Circle approves scholarships

A request for scholarships for underprivileged children to attend Children's Theatre productions led to a donation approval by members of Charity Circle of The King's Daughters when they met last week at the home of Mrs. Don Jabas. Also approved was a contribution to the Salvation Army.

Plans for the circle's upcoming project, Round Robin Bridge Parties, were discussed. These events will be held throughout the day of Jan. 29 at members' homes.

A letter from Meals on Wheels chairman explained the need for more participants in this undertaking and further explained that interested persons need not be members of The King's Daughters.

Mrs. John Brann, president of the organization's council, announced that the next all-circle council meeting will be the first Thursday in April.

Decoupage, stitchery to be displayed at Y

A Preview Open House of decoupage and creative stitchery is scheduled from 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Appleton YMCA. Displays will feature the work of Pam Cooley, decoupage instructor, and Mary Jane Larsen, stitchery instructor, at the Y.

Mrs. Cooley also instructs paper toling. Works of Mrs. Larsen will include crewel stitchery, large stitchery designs and embroidery. Many pieces of the artists' work are framed and finished and ready for home decorations or gifts. Purpose of the Open House is to acquaint people with the work of the two artists in their respective fields.

The Y Auxiliary is furnishing refreshments, and the public is invited to meet instructors and attend the preview of stitchery and decoupage.

Happy, but tired groups exit from Washington

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — John H. Diacou and family began a tiring drive home to Chicago today, happy to have been among "the chosen few" despite the winter chill, the long lines, the short nights and the checkbook drain of Richard Nixon's inauguration.

"We fully expect to come back for the inauguration of then-President Spiro T. Agnew" in 1977, said Diacou, the 32-year-old owner of a Chicago paper-distributing company.

The Diacous were joined by perhaps 50,000 others who journeyed to the nation's capital to participate in this year's version of the quadrennial pageant.

Women list official slate

GREENVILLE — Mrs. Ronald Dorschner was installed as new president of the Greenville Women's Community Club. Serving with her will be Mrs. Paul Baehman, vice president; Mrs. Eugene Dorn, treasurer; Mrs. Martin Kennerk, secretary; and Mrs. Vernon Marquardt, recording secretary at the recent meeting.

Members brought guests to hear Mrs. John Hovie, Neenah, lecture and demonstrate the making of spiritual floral arrangements. Mrs. Len Spreeman, Mrs. Harold Strey, Mrs. Francis Tellock and Mrs. Hattie Weltzien were on the serving committee.

Dance class begins at Y

Gail Morrow, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, will teach a class in modern and interpretative dance movement beginning Feb. 6. A graduate of the University of Michigan with a major in music, she was a member of the Cleveland Performing Modern Dance Group and also taught dance in elementary schools in the Cleveland area.

The eight-week course will be held at 5:45 p.m. at the Appleton YMCA on Tuesdays.

Registration may be made in the adult department of the Y. A nominal fee is being charged for the course.

Diacou, who also attended the 1969 inauguration, acknowledged that "the bloom was off the rose" this time around and there were plenty of noisome moments.

At the swearing-in ceremony on Capitol Hill, for example, his suitcoat buttons were ripped off accidentally, forcing him, wife Carol and daughters Joy, 10, and Constance, 7, to linger in a blustery wind until they were found.

Then there was the interminable waiting in ticket and reception lines, "enough to make any person feel it's not worth it," and a sufficient number of street bottlenecks to convince him that traffic control "is one thing that the Chicago police do better."

Diacou, who won his coveted inaugural invitations by contributing to the Nixon campaign with both time and money—his firm was to have furnished the confetti for a Nixon parade that fell through last fall—says he economized this time.

He figures he saved $350 in airfare by piling his wife and daughters and another couple, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Grabowski, into the family car for the 12-hour drive. His mother, however, came by plane.

Staying with friends in Ellicott City, Md., saved a $250 hotel bill, he said.

But there was still a matter of $40 to attend an Agnew reception, $160 for symphony seats, $80 for parade tickets, $200 for a concert, $80 for the Saturday night ball, $40 for an Illinois reception, and $40 for the American Heritage exposition.

At rates like that, why does a man do it?

"One reason is to be able to say 'I went—I was one of the chosen few,'" said Diacou.

And "you go ... to meet those people, to say hello. It becomes a matter of them seeing you, seeing that you were there, that's partly how the political game works."

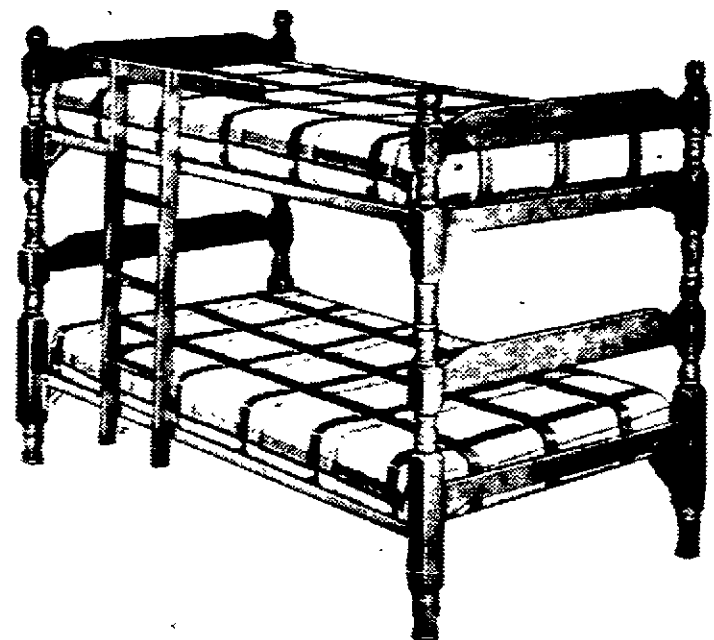

"Most people, whether they admit it or not, have some deep-seated desire for political office," said Diacou, adding that he's in the market for something on the Cook County level.

Then too, he said, "I had a built-in excuse, and that was to give the kids an opportunity to see and learn something they don't get every day." Washington, he said, "has a million and one things that have to be seen ... Connie said she'd be glad to stay for the next 10 years."

As for Diacou's wife, "She enjoyed the ball ... the amount of time I took to dance, which I don't ordinarily find time to do. We didn't get in until 5:30 Sunday morning," he said.

Still, it was good that it was all over. By Sunday afternoon Carol Diacou told her husband: "We've got to be in bed by 9 o'clock. I just can't hack it any longer."

Dr. G. C. Thosteson Abused drugs create escape from reality medicine — can create a false feeling of well-being in certain individuals. Stimulant drugs — such as amphetamines — can produce an unwarranted feeling of power and excitement.

But in all cases, a "high" or a "low" results in one thing: An escape from reality. And it is reality itself that the drug abuser seeks to avoid.

"What's wrong with feeling good?" is a question drug abusers often use in defending their habit. Let's turn the question around and ask, "What's right with feeling bad?"

Consider physical pain. Bad, right? Well, not exactly. If you couldn't feel pain, you could place your hand on a hot stove and feel nothing until you smelled flesh burning. Normally you would immediately feel pain and instinctively snatch your hand away with nothing but a minor blister.

Like physical pain, emotional pain is a signal that something is wrong and a warning to do something about it right away.

Even nonprescription drugs such as aspirin carry warnings about continued use and overuse. Unless used with caution, such helpful drugs may hide the difference between a minor illness and a more serious one.

Similarly a drug "high" or "low" offers relief from emotional pain. The drug user no longer hurts. Consequently he does nothing about the situation which is causing the problem.

When he comes down again, he hurts painful conditions. Yet we seldom hear of "aspirin addicts."

What makes commonly abused drugs different from aspirin and thousands of other drugs that are seldom abused?

Although they vary greatly in chemical makeup and in the way they work in the human body and brain, almost all widely abused drugs have one thing in common. They produce unusual and abnormal feelings which drug abusers call a "high" or a "low."

Actually, "high" and "low" can mean many things depending on the person and the drug. Drugs that dull the senses — such as heroin which is not used in as much as ever — or more. For some drug abusers, one such "crash landing" is enough. Others go back to their drugs and try again to escape the problems of real life.

Like a person who cannot feel pain, the habitual drug abuser becomes immune to the warning signals of growing danger. At last, his emotional problem no longer can be ignored. A wild spree of drug abuse can end in emotional explosion, irreparable physical damage or even death.

Bridge work to be under way by midsummer

MENASHA — By mid-June motorists should be able to spot heavy construction equipment on both shores of Little Lake Butte des Morts as work is scheduled to start on the two-year $14 million project.

The first bids will be opened in less than three months for the sub-structure and structural steel contracts which are estimated at $4.7 million.

Then, only a couple of months after the first work begins, bids will be opened — on July 17 — for the grading work on the east approach to Racine Street, a $300,000 project.

About a year from now, nearly 1974 the final structure bid — for the concrete decking — will be opened on the work estimated at $1.9 million.

Concurrently with the bridge work state engineers are preparing the bid documents for the upgrading of U.S. 41 between State 150 and the north Winnebago County line. This work which includes the sophisticated interchange to carry the bridge traffic, is estimated at $6.8 million.

Clem Mertens, Green Bay district 3 chief design engineer, said the plans are being finalized in Madison by the bridge section.

Although construction plans are in the final stages, there are still some important hurdles to clear to make sure enough money will be available to cover the costs.

The work as planned and estimated costs are:

— Concrete masonry and structural steel for the 3,256 foot span, estimated at $4.7 million.

— Concrete decking and paving, $1.9 million.

— Overhead at Tayco Street and paving to Racine Street, $385,000.

— Grading from the east shore to Racine Street, $300,000.

— West side interchange, $4 million.

plus another $2.8 million for frontage roads and eliminating all at-grade U.S. 41 access points.

The engineering end of the work has been formalized and will be ready to bid in a few weeks, but now the political game of "where's the money coming from" will get started.

Following referendums, the town and city of Menasha pledged $500,000 and $700,000, respectively, toward the construction.

Winnebago County has $1.8 million already in the bank from a bond issue sold about three years ago. The county has also pledged to pay a $900,000 lump sum.

Thiel's Milk gets variance on plant but not on loading ramp

SHERWOOD — Thiel's Milk Products, Inc., route 1, Menasha, received a variance from the Calumet County Zoning Appeals Board Thursday on its $350,000 whey plant in the Town of Harrison.

The petition for a variance for the loading ramp, attached to the plant and located on the Schaefer Road right-of-way, was revoked by the board. Both decisions were unanimous, according to chairman Royal Gillis.

The decisions were made after a public hearing conducted Jan. 13 at Harrison Town Hall after an appeal for variances was made by Thiel's, represented by attorney Robert Lutz, Chilton.

Building permits applied for last November were denied. The building to handle the whey by-product from the dairy plant, according to Department of Natural Resources requirements, was built in the fall of 1971. The firm, however, was not under DNR orders. The ramp, used by Foremost Foods, Appleton, to collect the whey, was built in the spring of 1972.

Gillis said the board, in denying the appeal, noted that according to testimony given at the hearing, the construction of the ramp had been ordered stopped last spring, but a building permit was not sought until November. Alois Thiel, former president of the firm who supervised the construction of the building, died in January, 1972. The project engineer also is deceased.

At the hearing the appeal board had questioned its power to grant variances after a violation had occurred. Lutz, who also is legal counsel for the Town of Harrison, said that according to the Calumet County zoning ordinance, the appeal board could grant a variance where there was an "unnecessary hardship or practical difficulty." Calumet County Planner Roland Tonn had argued that the practical difficulty had arisen in after the structures were completed because Thiels had not applied for building permits.

A petition with about 300 signatures saying the signers were in favor of the variances was presented at the hearing. Town officials agreed at the hearing to allow the ramp on the right-of-way, if Thiels gave a "hold harmless" agreement and changed the structure in the event the three-road-wide road was widened to four roads.

Members of the committee in addition to Gillis are James Weber, Town of New Holstein, and James Scholz, Town of Rantoul.

Further action will be up to the Calumet County Planning and Zoning Department.

Town of Harrison may have three contests

SHERWOOD — Races for chairman, clerk and treasurer appear to be developing in the Town of Harrison, where several candidates took nomination papers over the week-end.

Challenging veteran chairman, George Schwalbach are Mrs. Mary B. Leader, Route 1, Menasha, and Joseph Luniak, Route 2, Menasha.

Mrs. Leader, a housewife, staged a vigorous write-in campaign for chairman in the last election. She has been involved with several fund-raising campaigns in the town, for public health organizations as well as Girl Scouting and the Calumet County Association for the Retarded Children.

Luniak, a painting contractor, and is seeking his first political office.

Challenging clerk, Royal Gillis, is Mrs. Virginia Zobel, route 1, Menasha. Mrs. Zobel, a housewife, and income tax consultant, has many years of clerical experience. She has been employed by the federal government in Milwaukee, local Labor organizations, and an income tax service firm.

John F. Stumpf, route 1, Menasha, has taken papers for treasurer, opposing incumbent, Walter Stark. Stumpf is making his second try for the treasurer's position, having lost to Stark in the last election.

Both incumbent supervisors, Henry Herbeck, and Gordon Vande Hey have taken papers, as well as assessor, Raymond Zuleger.

Completed papers must be filed with Royal Gillis, Route 1, Menasha, by 5 p.m. Jan. 30.

Steiger introduces shield law

WASHINGTON — A bill protecting the rights of journalists to keep unused information and sources confidential — within certain limitations — has been introduced by U.S. Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh.

The Free Flow of Information Act of 1973 would protect journalists, but also "has safeguards against irresponsibility on the part of journalists or their sources," the sponsor said.

"Freedom of the press is so important because it is really freedom for the public to know," he said. "If newsmen are unable to guarantee their sources' anonymity, there would be a substantial, if not virtually complete, blackout of much hard news of the most essential kind."

Steiger's legislation would protect newsmen from having to disclosed unused information or sources unless a petition to federal district court is accompanied by "clear and convincing evidence" that:

— There is "probably cause" to believe the source of information knows something "relevant to a specific probable violation of the law;"

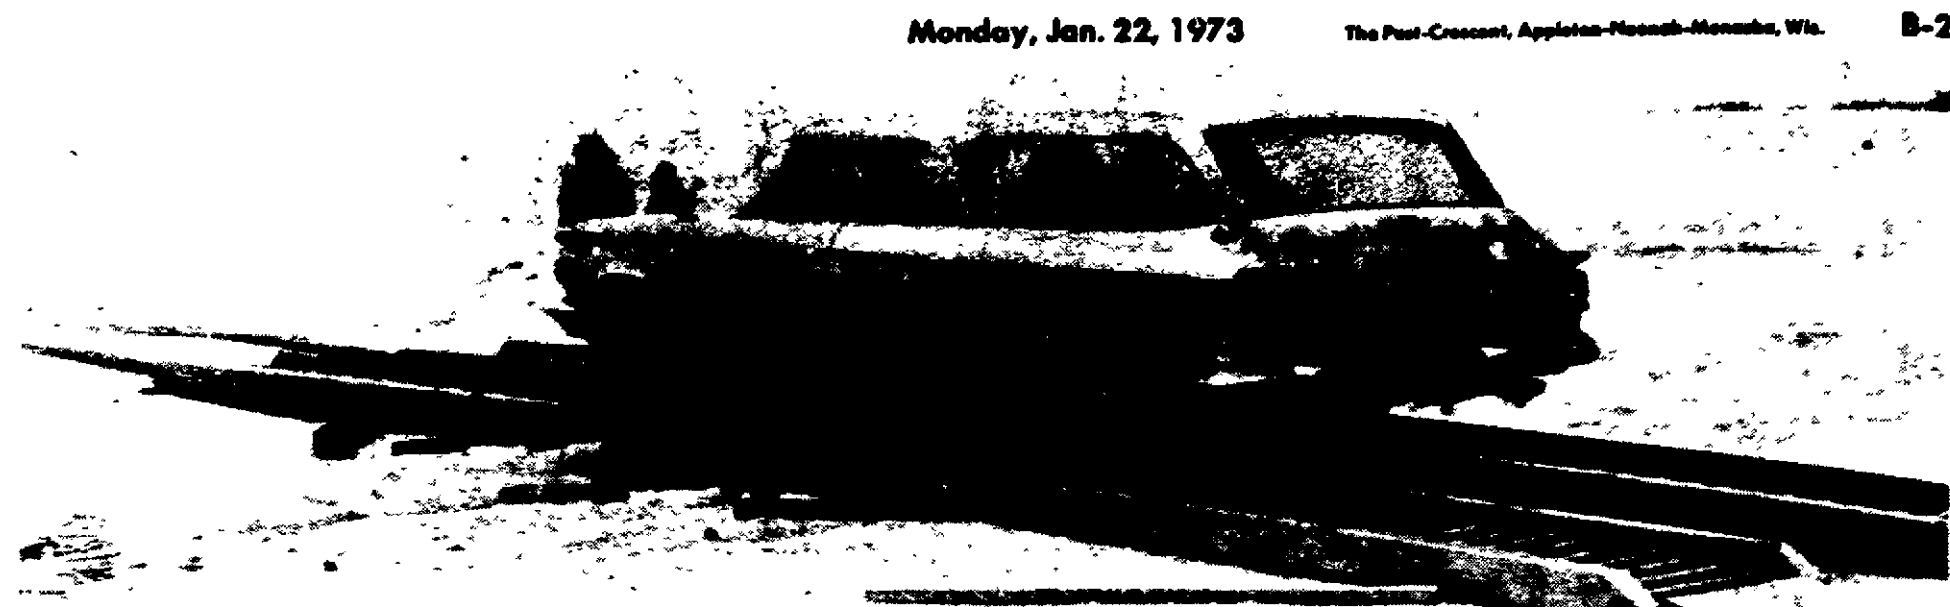

— The information sought by courts or the Congress "cannot be obtained any other way;"

— There is "compelling and overriding national interest" in the information being sought; and — The source of the defamatory information is being used for defense in a civil action for defamation.

Steiger said his bill was "the kind of balance legislation that I feel is needed." He said that many journalists have pointed to the potential dangers of an absolute "shield" law.

The bill covers persons connected with or employed by media or the press, as well as persons independently gathering information for publication or broadcast.

Town upset, questions state equalized value

NEENAH — Disenchantment is mounting in the town over the amounts expected under the federal revenue sharing program and the assessment figures prepared by the state, town chairman Kenneth Heinz said this morning.

Heinz said he and members of the town board will attend a Wednesday morning session on federal revenue sharing at the courthouse, conducted statewide over the Educational Telephone Network (ETN).

The town, Heinz contends, should have received more in revenue sharing funds, based on population alone. Several factors, population included, play upon the amounts which municipalities anticipate under the program.

To date, the town has received two checks, one of $5,856, the other $5,620, for a total of $11,476, according to Town Clerk Carita Williams. Both have been placed in the town's general fund, she said. Four more checks, three of them in this calendar year, are forthcoming. Mrs. Williams declined to speculate on what the eventual total might be.

Heinz said he was "very dissatisfied" over the actual amounts received. He said the town board undoubtedly would be challenging the sum following the Wednesday session. Heinz was unsure as to the form this challenge would take at this point.

On the assessment matter, meanwhile, the town will contact Donald Sherman, Supervisor of Assessments, in the Fond du Lac office of the state department of revenue, for an explanation, Heinz said.

HELP MATE

I am being pressured by a close friend to split the $3,500 fee needed to obtain $7,700 worth of cosmetics under the Holiday Magic plan. Since attending a sales meeting, he has become very excited about the prospects, and he is borrowing the money to do it. But I have a lot of questions. Has this firm been in any trouble with the government? I don't want to disappoint my friend, but I don't want to risk losing all that money either. What should I do? K.R.

Holiday Magic Inc., of San Rafael, Calif., is now a defendant in Federal Trade Commission hearing, charged with using deceptive and anti-competitive practices in an "endless chain" marketing plan. The complaint says, among other things, that because of progressive saturation of market areas through continuous recruitment of salespeople "some participants in the program receive little or no return on their investment."

The plan is like a lottery, the FTC complaint says, because participants are asked to invest substantial sums on the chance that by "the activities and efforts of others, over whom they need exercise little or no control, they will receive substantial financial gains." Such gains, the FTC says, do not depend on individual skill but may result from "predominant elements of chance, such as number of prior participants in the program."

In response to the FTC complaint, Holiday Magic said it makes no promises that cannot be fulfilled; that its marketing program prevents "the evil inherent in an 'endless chain';" and that "all financial gains under the plan are entirely dependent upon the skill and effort of the individual participants, and there is no element of chance involved."

Several states have also taken action against Holiday Magic.

In 1959, I bought a complete set of pots and pans from a door to door salesman. There was a lifetime guarantee on the handles, but to get them replaced you must send the old ones back. The pots were made by Rena Ware, but I tried unsuccessfully to find their address. Can you help? R.S.

An official of the Direct Selling Association, a trade organization in Washington, D.C., representing door-to-door sellers, said you may write to Martin Lindquist, senior vice president, Rena Ware, Box 913, Bellevue, Washington, 98009, sending the guarantee number, the patent number on the pot and the year you bought it.

The shoulder straps in our 1971 Chevrolet Impala are positioned in such a way that they cut directly across the neck, which is more dangerous than having no straps at all. My husband and I are both five feet eight and a half inches tall.

The car dealer and area service manager said there was nothing that could be done, as the strap positioning is a matter of the car's design. What can we do R.S.

A spokesman for the Department of Transportation says some drivers experiencing this problem have had their car seats raised and others have used cushions. Neither DOT nor the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety know of any such injuries from shoulder belts.

A spokesman for Chevrolet said the belt arrangement is designed for sizes of people representing 90 per cent of the population. He suggested that the belt be passed through a rubber band attached to the headrest, drawing it away from the neck for normal driving. Ford and General Motors have proposed to DOT a roller on seat belts, through which the shoulder belt would pass before passing over the shoulder, thus holding it against the shoulder for an adult of almost any height.

I am gathering material for a consumer action guide for people in my county, covering all aspects of consumer problems. I especially want to have names and addresses of people and organizations to contact for possible solutions to problems. Do you know of any good source of such information R.L.

The most comprehensive guide of this kind is a recently published paperback, "The Radical Consumer's Handbook," by Goody L. Solomon (Ballantine Books, 36 W. 20th Street, New York, N.Y. 10003). This 176-page book describes various types of actions to solve consumer problems and lists names and addresses of government agencies, trade associations and citizen organizations in a position to help. The book retails for $1.25.

One thing that has bothered me for a long time is what is put into ice cream by the manufacturers. I have examined their packages and never find a word about the ingredients. Other packages of food must have ingredients listed. Will you please look into this? L.B.

Ice cream is one of many "standardized" food products not required to list ingredients if the products conform to certain standards of composition accepted by the government. Standardized food products include vinegar, mayonnaise and catsup. Non-standardized food items must list ingredients in descending order of their weight per package. State standards sometimes vary from federal requirements.

Federal standards require that ice cream have at least 10 per cent milk fat and 20 per cent total milk solids, exclusive of flavorings such as chocolate, fruits or nuts. Ice milk must have at least 2 per cent but not more than 7 per cent milk fat and at least 11 per cent total milk solids. Milk solids include protein, milk sugar, minerals and vitamins. The rest is mostly air and water, except for various chemicals such as stabilizers, colorings and flavorings, which need not be listed on the label. Both ice cream and ice-milk must weigh at least 4½ pounds per gallon.

A spokesman for the International Institute of Ice Cream Manufacturers said the industry is moving toward more listing of ingredients. The Code of Federal Regulations (Title 21, Part 20), found in most lawyers' offices, gives a list of optional ingredients. If you have questions about specific brands or ingredients, write to the company or the Institute, 910 17th St. NW., Washington, D.C. 20006.

I am enclosing the side of a box of Total cereal, with a mark showing the level of the cereal when I opened it. As you can see, the total amount of Total reached only slightly more than half way up. I realize some settling occurs, but should it really amount to this much? Have any companies been ordered to quit such deception? C.A.

In reply to a letter from HELP

MATE, the maker of Total, General Mills, insisted that flake cereals may break and settle that much during shipping. The company spokesman pointed out the product is sold by weight, not volume. He noted that the box declares that a refund is available to any dissatisfied buyer who writes for it.

The Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of 1966 gave the Food and Drug Administration the authority to combat any deception in package volume. The FDA branch responsible for enforcement has requested approval for a study to determine how much "slack fill" is deceptive. Cereals, however, are not among the items to be covered because preliminary surveys did not show as much slack fill in them as other products, such as gelatin desserts and spaghetti.

Operators of beer bars seek legislation

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's beer bar owners, claiming they still face bankruptcy because of the age of majority law, plan to take their case again to the state legislature.

The Wisconsin Malt Beverage Association said that it will introduce a bill which would allow about 500 beer bar owners to apply for liquor licenses.

The owners staged a sit-in in the state Assembly chambers shortly after the age of majority law was passed by the 1971 legislature.

They claim the law, which allows 18-year-olds to drink liquor, makes them unable to compete with liquor bars because they were not allowed to obtain liquor licenses.

In a memo to state lawmakers, the association said there were about 700 beer bars in Wisconsin before the age of majority law passed.

About 200 have since obtained liquor licenses, about 175 have gone out of business and the remainder have suffered business declines ranging from 90 per cent to 50 per cent, it said.

The association said its bill would limit eligibility for liquor licenses to those beer bars which held a malt beverage license on Feb. 1, 1972, or can demonstrate they intended to purchase a bar prior to that date.

Only persons who can demonstrate that beer sales were an essential part of their business would be eligible, it said.

Bill lets wife keep her name

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Legislation that would allow a woman to keep her maiden name after marriage and a man to take his wife's name has been introduced in the New York Assembly.

The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman Antonio Olivieri, D-Manhattan, would authorize couples applying for a marriage license to state at that time whether they intend to adopt the last name of either partner, to keep their own names or to use a combination of the two.

The names stated on the application would become the legal names of the two after the wedding.

Hearing set on judge's appointment of brother

MADISON — The Wisconsin Supreme Court's Judicial Commission will hold a formal, public hearing Friday to determine if Outagamie County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren's retaining of his brother as public administrator is a violation of the code of judicial ethics.

The hearing, first in the yearlong history of the commission, will begin at 9 a.m. in Room 319 South in the Capitol.

The nine commissioners are not expected to make a formal finding or take other action Friday, according to George Alderson, the commission's executive secretary. The panel probably will ask for briefs after the hearing and is likely to put its action in writing later, Alderson explained.

The commission is limited, under present state statutes, to censuring or reprimanding a judge, Alderson said, but legislation has been adopted to strengthen its powers.

The commission, which early last year received a written complaint against Van Susteren (the name of the complainant has not been revealed), charges that the judge has violated the judicial code because he "has exercised his judicial duties in matters in which his brother (Joseph Van Susteren of Appleton) has an interest and has exercised his judicial duties in matters in which his brother appears as counsel."

Appleton residents give phones a good workout

When it comes to telephones, Appleton has some of the most talkative people in the world, according to an annual survey recently completed by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Richard Van Sistine, local manager for the Wisconsin Telephone Co., said area residents place more than 73.6 million calls a year. This represents an average of 896 calls per year by every man, woman and child living in the local exchange.

The nationwide yearly average is 830 calls a year, which makes Americans the world's heaviest users of telephones. Running well behind Americans are the Canadians, who make 781 calls a year, and the Swedes, who average 687 calls.

Telephone use is not an everyday occurrence for many people in the world, according to A.T.&T. Citizens of El Salvador and Pakistan, for example, place a telephone call on the average of

Interim draws more students at UWGB

GREEN BAY — January interim enrollment at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay has increased 13.5 per cent over last year's record total of 1,815 students, according to a report released by Ronald Dhuey, UWGB registrar.

The figure represents an average rate of participation in the between semesters academic program of about 57 per cent of the students who registered last fall. Of the veterans registered during the first semester, 74 per cent are enrolled in January classes.

Enrollment in the month-long term includes about 180 students who are working in foreign study programs in Europe and South America and a number who are pursuing off-campus projects in Wisconsin and other parts of the country as well as those who are attending regular classes on the campus.

The greatest growth in participation occurred in the special student group and the freshman class. Dhuey pointed out. Of the special students registered in September, 26 per cent enrolled for January, compared with only 14 per cent in 1972. Fifty-four per cent of September's freshmen are registered for January, as against 47 per cent last year. Junior and senior participation is 66 per cent of the September total and sophomore enrollment represents 59 per cent of the fall registration in that class.

Total registration for the first semester was 3,625, an increase of 2½ per cent over the 1971-72 academic year. The figure placed UWGB among only five degree-granting campuses in the state to show an increase or hold their own in a period of stabilizing and decreasing enrollments on campuses across the United States

Bids received for postal branch

Sealed bids and bid forms for conducting a branch of the U.S. Post Office in the Valley Fair Shopping Center area will be received at the Appleton Post Office until 5 p.m. Jan. 29.

A new postal branch is necessary due to the closing of the W. T. Grant Store at Valley Fair, where the branch previously was located, the post office announced.

The bids will be for the operation of the branch until Jan. 30, 1973, and they are to be submitted on an annual basis.

The agreement basically calls for sufficient space in the main room of a store to conduct postal business including the sale of postal money orders, acceptance of registered, certified, and parcel post and the sales of stamps, stamped envelopes and post-cards.

The agreement also calls for special hours and the furnishing of a $3,000 bond for performance of duties.

Judge Van Susteren appointed his brother as public administrator shortly after he became judge of the divorce probate court (Branch 1) in February, 1965.

He repeated his contention today that he has not violated the judicial ethics code because his brother is an aide to the probate court and does not appear in Branch 1 as an attorney practicing law.

Judge Van Susteren has stated his contention, both orally and in writing, to the commission which had given him until mid-November of last year to announce Joseph's removal or resignation.

Van Susteren refused to acknowledge the order and his brother still holds the part-time courthouse job.

Alderson said the commission hearing Friday will be "just like a court hearing." An attorney will present the commission's views.

Judge Van Susteren is entitled to legal counsel, but as of this morning, he was undecided if he will retain an attorney. At first, when questioned by a reporter, he said he might take along his brother and maybe a couple of lawyers in an attempt to prove Joseph has never appeared as an attorney in his court.

The attorneys also might be asked to show that there have been no complaints from the bar over having once every two years. Other countries with few telephones and low usage are Laos, Ethiopia, Madagascar and Uganda. In those countries, residents average less than five calls per year.

The figures are included in the latest edition of "The World's Telephones," a compilation of world-wide telephone statistics published by A.T.&T. All data in the 26-page booklet is current as of Jan. 1972. It takes about one year to gather the information from around the world.

A.T.&T. statistics show that the world telephone network is experiencing a period of rapid growth. Nearly 19 million phones were added to the global system during 1970. Annual growth has exceeded 6 per cent for the last 17 years.

Americans have access to 43 per cent of the world's 291 million telephones. The United States is far ahead of Japan, which claims 10 per cent of all phones in service. There are now 38 countries which are served by more than one-half million telephones. Bulgaria is the latest addition to that list.

There are about 60 telephones for every 100 Americans. In the country of Monaco, there are 66 phones per 100 people, but the tiny nation has only 16,000 phones in service.

Van Sistine said there are 49,781 phones in the Appleton exchange, or 60.5 for every 100 persons.

There are more than enough telephones for everyone in the nation's capital. For every 100 residents in Washington, D.C., there are 123 phones. Telephones also outnumber people in Southfield, Mich., and in Skokie, Ill., the number of phones matches the population.

By comparison, telephone facilities are stretched much thinner in Saigon, Vietnam, where there is only one telephone for every 100 persons.

A.T.&T. notes that international calling became increasingly popular during 1971. Some 31 million calls were exchanged between the United States and points overseas during that year, a 24 per cent increase over 1970. To meet this demand, overseas telephone circuits from the United States were increased 15 per cent in the one-year period.

"The World's Telephones" booklet is available for reference at the local telephone company office. Copies have also been distributed to libraries throughout the state.

Joseph as public administrator.

But later in the conversation, Van Susteren guessed he might appear as the only witness in his behalf. He believed that Friday's proceedings might be just a "rehash" of what has happened during earlier, secret deliberations by the commission.

Alderson said the charges against Van Susteren seem to involve primarily questions of law. He guessed there will be few witnesses at the open hearing.

Technically, a public administrator, is an employee of the state, but he is appointed by and serves at the pleasure of the county's probate judge.

The public administrator in Wisconsin is not paid a salary, but is on a fee basis established by state statute. The law further allows the probate judge to permit additional fees if an estate involves more than the normal amount of work for the administrator.

In recent years, the part-time job has meant an income of about $20,000 for Joseph Van Susteren, an Appleton attorney.

Judge Van Susteren has admitted the public administrator's job is a "plum," but he further argues that it would be the same no matter who held the Outagamie post. Besides, he has insisted, his brother does the job well.

Coroner investigates 188 deaths

Last year was the busiest year ever for the Outagamie County coroner's office. Officials investigated 188 deaths in 1972 compared to 164 in 1971 and 175 in 1969.

In his annual report issued today, Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said 127 of last year's deaths were due to natural causes, 44 were accidental, 15 were suicides and two were undetermined. Kemps' office investigates about one death in every five, with most requests for study made by police.

Traffic accidents accounted for 24 deaths, six more than the previous year and the most since 31 in record 1968. Of the 24, 16 were drivers and three of them were legally intoxicated when killed. One of the drivers killed was a 10-year-old bicyclist. Only one accident, in which two men died, involved multiple fatalities. Three of the four pedestrians killed were children.

Explosion's aftermath

This is the remains of one of the rental cottages at Mel's Cottages, south of the U.S. 10 bridge at Fremont, after an explosion Sunday caused by an apparent gas leak. Mel Baker, 66, had gone into the cottage to light a heater when the explosion occurred. (Post-Crescent photos)

Coroner investigates 188 deaths

Of the 20 other accidental deaths, six were industrial, four domestic and three on farms. One pedestrian was killed by a train, while one death each was attributed to a fall, a fire, drowning and carbon monoxide poisoning.

Two deaths were listed as "miscellaneous."

Of the 15 suicides, five were from carbon monoxide poisoning, four from drug overdoses, three from hanging, two from gunshot wounds and one from stab wounds.

For the second straight year there were no homicides in the county.

Of the 41 autopsies performed by coroner's order, 16 were paid for by the county. Two inquests were conducted, both without a coroner's jury.

The state crime laboratory and the state fire marshal took part in one death investigation each.

Fifty-one people were found dead in or near their homes. Twelve cremation permits were issued.

Outagamie and Rock counties were selected during 1972 by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to participate in a pilot program for testing drivers for marijuana if they are dead on or before arriving at a hospital.

Kemps' office is able to make use of a consulting laboratory for forensic medicine at the University of Wisconsin Medical School.

The laboratory, opened last September, is available to all Wisconsin coroners and will be used by Outagamie County in cases such as homicides and homicides by intoxicated drivers where extensive court action can be expected. The forensic autopsy surgeons will be available for testimony.

Man injured in explosion at cottage

FREMONT — The owner of Mel's Cottage, Melvin Baker 66, escaped serious injury Sunday morning when a minor explosion occurred in one of his units when he attempted to light a gas heater.

Baker was taken to Riverside Hospital in Waupaca, where he was treated for burns on his knees, and hands and face and a deep head wound.

Baker was taken to the hospital by a neighbor, Don Biddison, whom he had summoned by telephone for help after the accident. When he arrived, Biddison said, he found Baker outside the building attempting to put out a fire in some clothing.

Baker said that he did not know what it was that struck him in the head causing the deep cut.

The Waupaca County Sheriff's department is investigating the incident.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza said building has started on 15,000 houses donated by the United States and other members of the Organization of American States.

"We are cleaning up the city," he said. "Within a year we will return to normal."

Foreign relief workers estimated between 10,000 and 12,000 persons died in the quake, which destroyed 600 blocks of the capital city. Damage was estimated at $1 billion.

Vietnamese unit mauled

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces have suffered a major defeat in the past few days, with two army battalions overrun and cut to pieces and relief forces repeatedly ambushed northwest of Saigon.

Field reports said at least 80 soldiers, some of them wounded, had drifted back to government lines in the past two days. Some had been given safe conduct passes by the Communists after agreeing to throw away their weapons.

It was not known how many more were trying to escape nor was there any accurate count of the dead and wounded from the two battalions of the 5th Division which apparently fell into an enemy trap six days ago. The government has admitted so far to 55 of its troops killed and 132 wounded since Friday.

South Vietnamese commanders, after a series of emergency conferences, rejected a Viet Cong offer of a local cease-fire to allow unarmed helicopters to pick up 130 wounded government soldiers. Officers said they thought the offer was a ruse to forestall air strikes and other attacks so the Communist forces could get away from the area 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

No new fighting was reported today in the area along the southern edge of the Michelin rubber plantation. Field reports indicated that both sides were resting up after nearly a week of bitter combat.

Reluctant flier shifted

MANILA (AP) — A U.S. Air Force spokesman said today that Lt. Dwight J. Evans Jr., who may be court-martialed for refusing to fly a combat mission over North Vietnam, has been assigned to the 405th Combat Support Group at Clark Air Force Base north of Manila.

The spokesman said Evans was a lieutenant, not a captain as previously reported, and was a navigator for F4 Phantom fighter-bombers, not a pilot.

He said Evans was not under detention, but newsmen could not interview him because of a policy previously announced in Washington forbidding Air Force personnel from giving press interviews until a Vietnam peace settlement is reached.

Evans, 26, had been assigned to the 34th Tactical Fighter Squadron in Thailand. He has been at Clark several weeks, the spokesman said.

Evans is one of two airmen who the Air Force has charged with refusing to fly combat missions over North Vietnam late last year. The other is Capt. Michael Heck, 30, of Chula Vista, Calif., who is confined to his base in Thailand while the Air Force decides whether to put him on trial.

The Air Force previously said Evans balked at bombing North Vietnam on Dec. 18, the day the Hanoi-Haiphong blitz began.

Conviction of charges of refusing orders to fly combat missions could bring a two-year sentence.

Ammunition intercepted

DUBLIN (AP) — Discovery of ammunition washed ashore on the southern coast of the Irish Republic sparked a land, sea and air search today for more munitions thought to be intended for the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Three cases of ammunition were found on beaches in County Cork. One was an eight-ton container with more than 1,000 rocket shells for bazookas, while two cases contained several thousand rounds of machine-gun ammunition.

Authorities said the labels indicated the crates were shipped from New York to the Netherlands. U.S. and Interpol agents were asked to help trace the shipment's origin.

Mrs. Nixon's press aide confirms plans to leave post soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sometimes controversial press secretary to Mrs. Richard Nixon confirms she will leave the post soon.

Constance Stuart said Sunday that three years of having endured the built-in strains and stresses of the job is enough.

Mrs. Stuart, 35, said she didn't know what she will do next. Her husband, Charles, also once worked for the White House and now is an executive in a real estate development corporation.

The $35,000 job of press secretary to Mrs. Nixon is reportedly going to deputy press secretary Helen Smith.

Mrs. Stuart became the second press secretary to Mrs. Nixon in October of 1969.

She once warned women reporters not to hide tape recorders in their bosoms while covering White House social events from which tape recorders were banned.

Muslim names as Salih Ali Abdullah, Dawd Abdullah Ar-Rahm and Shulab Abdul Raheem, whose lawyer said he was also known as Carey Earl Robinson. The wounded man, Yusef Abdul, 20, was in fair condition after surgery at King's County Hospital.

All but Abdul were booked at the police station on charges of homicide and first-degree robbery. Police said Abdul would be formally charged after his physical condition improves.

Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold said he would go before a grand jury today with charges against the four that probably would include the murder of Patrolman Stephen R. Gilroy, the attempted murder of Patrolmen Jose Adorno and Frank Carpenter, kidnapping and weapons possession.

Police said they were searching for a fifth man who was said to have been driving a getaway car when the robbery began about 5-45 p.m. Friday. They said the motive for the robbery was to obtain guns, not money.

In a hand-written letter carried out by a doctor who attended the wounded gunman, the four described themselves as "servants of Allah" and said they were "expressing solidarity with all Muslims and oppressed people of the world."

"We have nothing to lose and victory and paradise to gain," they declared. "We will not give in to your demands, but we will continue to hold the hostages who are being well treated and will not be harmed intentionally by us."

Earlier they had released three other hostages. The nine remaining included Jerry Riccio, a co-owner of the store.

Newsman's privilege proposal to be aired by Kastenmeier panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee plans hearings Thursday on legislation to protect the confidentiality of newsmen's sources and notes, Rep. Bob Kastenmeier said today.

The Wisconsin Democrat, chairman of the judiciary subcommittee, said the first day of hearings will be devoted to congressional testimony. He said subsequent hearing dates are tentatively set during the first week of February to solicit views from newsmen, their organizations, administration witnesses and other interested groups and individuals.

Kastenmeier said Rep. Peter Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, is to be the leadoff witness Thursday.

"The subcommittee will examine further the question of whether or not a newsman's privilege should be created, and if it is created, whether or not it should be qualified or absolute, and applicable to state as well as federal proceedings," Kastenmeier said.

"We will also deal with the difficult question of defining who is to enjoy the nondisclosure privilege," he said.

There currently are 21 measures in the House intended to protect newsmen's sources. Five measures have been introduced in the Senate.

Kastenmeier's subcommittee held five days of hearings last fall after a June 29 Supreme Court decision which held newsmen could not withhold court-ordered information. Since that decision, several newsmen have been imprisoned for failure to respond to subpoenas.

Bucks win behind Jabbar

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar returned from a two-day sabbatical of grief Sunday, leading the Milwaukee Bucks to a 124-108 victory over Golden State that cost the Warriors services of All-Star forward Rick Barry.

Abdul-Jabbar, a pallbearer in Washington Saturday at a mass funeral for seven persons slain in a home he had donated to a Muslim community, cast aside his personal burden long enough to pour in 27 points and snare 13 rebounds.

Lucius Allen contributed 25 points and Bob Dandridge 23 as the Bucks ran their National Basketball Association winning streak to eight games, their longest of the season.

Abdul-Jabbar, a close friend of the occupants of the Washington home, said he decided Saturday night to return for Sunday's game.

"I can't stop living, you know," he said. "I chose to live my life as a Muslim, and if I have to pay for it, I'll have to pay for it, that's all."

When asked shortly after the tragedy Thursday if he had considered the possibility of an attack against himself, Abdul-Jabbar had told the Associated Press. "Of course it's possible."

"He's a strong person—he has to be strong after what happened to him," Bucks' Coach Larry Costello said.

"It shows what a team player he is to come back so soon," he said. "He showed how much he thinks of his teammates."

Allen scored 10 of his points in the first 5½ minutes of the third period and fueled one of the Bucks' most impressive running spurts of the season as they outscored Golden State 24-6 to take command at 75-53.

Nate Thurmond, Golden State's acting coach, said the Warriors lost their continuity on offense when Barry injured an ankle late in the first half after having scored 15 points.

Barry drove in for a layup, collided with 250 pound Milwaukee center Dick Cunningham and fell heavily to the floor.

It was first feared Barry had broken his left ankle. Although x-rays disclosed no fracture, a Warriors' spokesman described the injury as a bruised fibula and moderate to severe sprain.

The spokesman said it was "highly improbable" Barry could play in Tuesday night's NBA All-Star game in Chicago, although the sleek forward planned to go to Chicago anyway for treatment.

"In the past I've been a quick healer," Barry said. "There have been times I was supposed to be out a couple of weeks and I was back after four or five games. I hope to be back next week for the Laker series."

Almost perfect
Costello said he didn't believe Barry's absence was a major factor in the Bucks' third quarter explosion.

"Our running did it," he said. "We just got some blocked shots and good bounces and maybe they had some people out of position. Our passing and execution in that stretch were almost perfect."

Abdul-Jabbar attributed the burst to defense.

"We made those steals and blocked some shots and got guys open," he said. "Then we caught them napping one time."

Allen said Barry's absence "hurt them more offensively than defensively because they're used to him taking over for them."

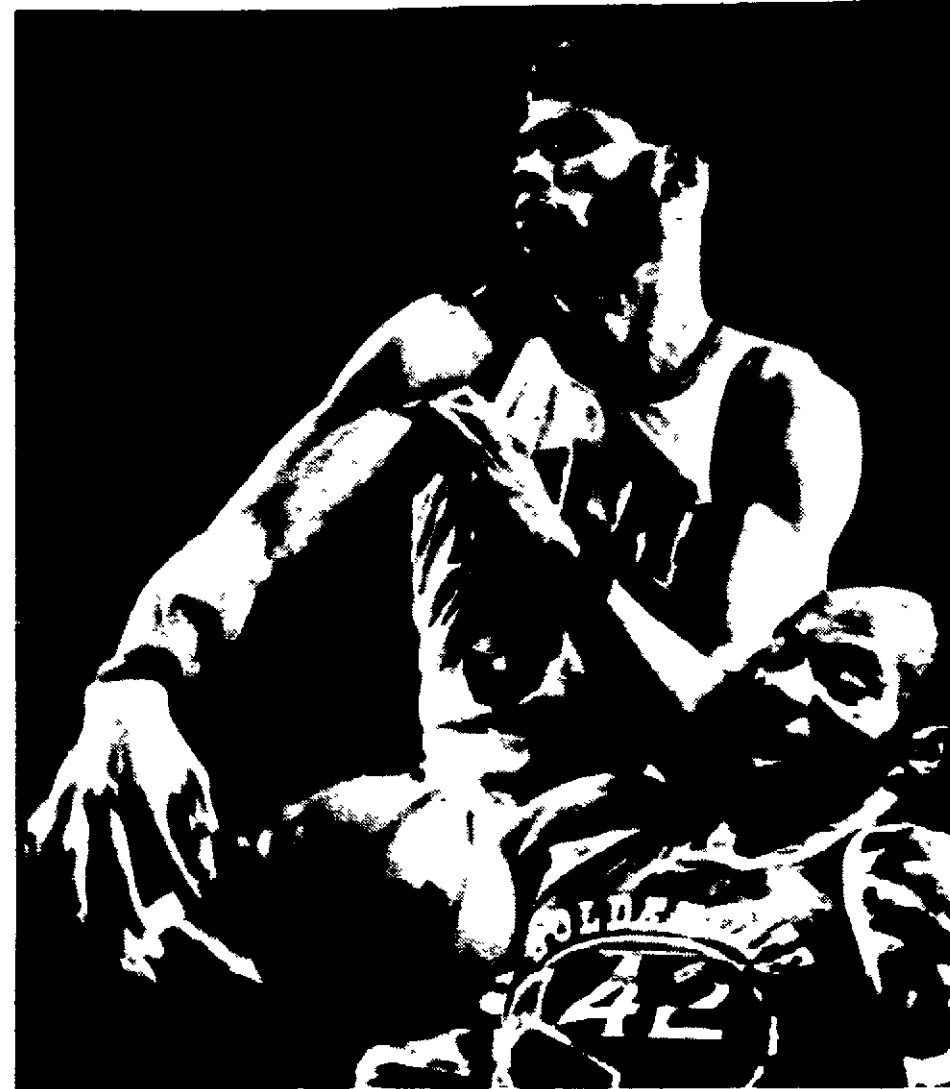

Thurmond agreed.

"Rick not only scores, he handles the ball well," Thurmond said. "With him out of our patterns, we took some bad shots when we didn't have anybody screening out under the boards. That enabled them to rebound and run. And they also played great defense, especially the first five minutes of the second half."

Simpson ignites AFC to Pro Bowl victory

DALLAS (AP) — The American Football Conference, formed a fiery merger with the old National Football League, had every right to be chesty today—at least for a year.

The AFC made it a historic clean sweep over the National Football Conference in Sunday's 33-28 Pro Bowl victory.

Previously, the AFC had captured the exhibition season 27-25-4 and the regular season 2019-1 from their older rivals and Miami dropped NFC member Washington 14-7 in the Super Bowl.

Sunday was the clincher in a collision of All-Stars between the two leagues.

"Last year the NFC got the most ink—we wanted to prove something," said running back O.J. Simpson of Buffalo, the game's Most Valuable Player.

Simpson, who led the NFL in rushing with 1,251 yards, scored one touchdown, rushed for 112 yards and caught three passes for 58 yards.

"O.J. made us look kinda funny at times," admitted Atlanta linebacker Tommy Nobis of the NFC.

"This was a fun game. I haven't had many fun games in my pro career," said Simpson, a four-year veteran who was in the Pro Bowl for the first time.

The victory before 47,879 chilled fans in Texas Stadium gave the AFC a 2-1 lead over the NFC in the series.

Simpson said offensive linemen Gene Upshaw of Oakland, Walt Sweeney of San Diego, Larry Little of Miami and Winston Hill of the New York Jets had him wide-eyed because they were so fired up for the game.

"These guys talked all week about how they were going to kill their man," Simpson said.

Otis Taylor of Kansas City, who caught a five-yard touchdown pass from Oakland's Daryle Lamonic, said there was much more at stake than the difference between $2,000 and $1,500 for the winners and losers.

"The rivalry still exists...It may not be as intense as the old days, but it's there," Taylor said. "Coach (Chuck) Noll (of Pittsburgh) told us the first day we were here to win and that was the attitude of the entire team all week."

Noll said "It may be getting old to the media but from our standpoint it means something."

John Brockington of Green Bay scored three touchdowns and quarterback Norm Snead of the New York Giants hit tight end Ted Kwalick of San Francisco with a 12-yard scoring pass but it wasn't enough.

Mary Hubbard of Oakland scored on an 11-yard run. Bobby Bell of Kansas City intercepted a Snead pass and returned it 12 yards for a touchdown and Pittsburgh's Roy Gerela kicked field goals of 18 and 22 yards for the AFC which overcame a 14-0 first quarter deficit.

Simpson said "I felt we could beat them. We won the preseason, the regular season and the Super Bowl and this topped it off."

Dick Jorgensen, formerly of Neenah, was the referee.

Frazier's title on line

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Joe Frazier makes the fifth defense of his world heavyweight ring title tonight against young, bull-strong George Foreman with the shadow of Muhammad Ali still haunting him from the wanes.

It is a definite crisis in the three-year reign of the savage, swarming champion, who was born on a South Carolina plantation, reared in a Philadelphia ghetto and prepared for his profession by work as a butcher in a slaughterhouse.

Should Frazier lose, the heavyweight division could be thrown into temporary turmoil and all the wind would be knocked out of the awaited Frazier-Ali rematch, which has promoters dreaming of a $20 million or $30 million extravaganza.

"Don't worry, I'm not gonna lose," the bearded Frazier says grimly. "I have never been more ready than I am for this fight. Then I'll talk about Clay."

The day before the showdown, Foreman appeared loose and confident, saying "Look at the records. Most heavyweight champions don't last more than two or three years. Frazier has had his day. Now it's my turn. I will win."

Las Vegas oddsmakers have made the 29-year-old champion a 3½-1 favorite over the 24-year-old challenger, who, like Frazier, is a former Olympic gold medalist and is unbeaten in his pro career.

Still, nobody knows for sure. Foreman is an enigma. As a pro, he has never been floored and ringsiders wonder if he has the fiber to come off the deck and keep fighting.

Fight time is 10:15 p.m., EST, and the place is the outdoor National Stadium, an oval built for soccer and cycling.

The fight will not be on home television but will be beamed by cable to 225 sites in the United States and Canada and by satellite to special theaters in Britain, France, Japan and a half-dozen other countries.

Son of a railroad construction worker, Foreman, at 24 is five years younger than Frazier, yet has more pro fights under his belt. His record is 37-0, with 34 knockout victims. Frazier has had 29 pro fights and won them all, 25 by knockout.

A strapping, handsome athlete, Foreman is 6-foot-3, has a five-inch-longer reach than Frazier and probably will carry a 10-pound weight advantage into the ring.

Houston nips Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Johnny Egan found a job. Walt Frazier lost his shoe and the New York Knicks lost a game.
The three events happened in Houston Sunday when Johnny Egan was made head coach of the Houston Rockets. Walt Frazier lost his sneaker with five seconds left in the game and the Knicks lost the game 107-103 in National Basketball Association play.
Egan said he hadn't thought too much about being named coach and beating the Knicks in his first game. "If it had been for the championship or something, maybe so, but we've got to play more games next week."
Mike Newlin scored the winning basket with five seconds left after Frazier lost his sneaker.
Newlin said, "It was just our turn to win that's all. It's a funny thing in basketball, sometimes you win and it has nothing to do with talent, like a guy falls down or loses his shoe."
The Rockets led by 14 points late in the third quarter, but the Knicks charged back in the final quarter and tied it 103-103 with 22 seconds to go on a basket by Dean Meminger.

Then Newlin, who led the Rockets with 25 points, dribbled in for a layup that put Houston into the lead for good. Don Smith stuffed a basket in at the final buzzer to close out the scoring.

John Egan

Jimmy Walker scored 22 points for Houston and Smith and Rudy Tomjanovich had 14 each. Frazier led the Knicks with 24 and Bill Bradley finished with 18.
In other NBA action, Milwaukee rolled over Golden State 124-108, Boston stopped Buffalo 104-97, Baltimore beat the hapless Philadelphia 76ers 108-97 and the Los Angeles Lakers crushed the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 123-102.

Ninth straight win
The Boston Celtics staved off a late period rally by the Buffalo Braves thanks to baskets by John Havlicek and Jo-Jo White and defeated the Braves for the ninth consecutive win. Elmore Smith was the games high scorer with 32 points.

The Baltimore Bullets, led by the newest 10,000-point scorer in NBA history, Elvin Hayes, increased the Philadelphia losing streak to nine.

Wilt Chamberlain and Oscar Robertson are the only two players who reached 10,000 earlier in their careers than Hayes. Hayes led the Bullets with 33 points while Manny Leaks paced the 76ers with 20.

Wilt Chamberlain's 29 points and 21 rebounds powered the Los Angeles Lakers over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings. It was the biggest point output of the season for Chamberlain. Nate Archibald, the NBA's leading scorer was held to 23 points, 10 below his average.

'Fun game' for O.J., Brockington

DALLAS (AP) — Former Heisman Trophy winner O.J. Simpson, voted the outstanding player in Sunday's Pro Bowl football game won by the American Conference 33-28, said he still had something to prove to the National Conference in his first all-star game after four pro seasons.

"Last year the NFC got the most ink, we wanted to prove something," said Simpson, who rushed for 112 yards and caught three passes for 58 more yards in the game.

"I felt we could beat them," said Simpson. "These guys talked all week about how they were going to kill their man. I felt we had the better conference. We won the pre-season, the regular season and the Super Bowl and this just topped it off."

Simpson called the contest "a fun game," noting, "I haven't had many of those in my pro career."

"O.J. played a great game," said AFC Coach Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers. "All these guys worked pretty well together considering there wasn't a great deal of common background."

Of the NFC-AFC rivalry, Noll said, "It may be getting old to the media, but from our standpoint it still means something."

Kansas City's Bobby Bell, whose intercepted pass and touchdown proved to be the eventual margin of victory, said the score was his first in nine Pro Bowls.

"It didn't really mean that much. We just eased up at the last," he said, referring to the NFC's final touchdowns in the last seconds that cut the AFC's lead from 19 points to five.

Jim Otto, Oakland center playing in his 12th Pro Bowl, blamed a slick ball on his bad snap on a punt that led to the NFC's first touchdown.

"All the snaps on both sides were a little wobbly," said Otto. "There was a glaze on the ball." Two other AFC snaps, by Bill Curry of Baltimore, went awry and caused turnovers.

Losing Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys said, "Errors made the difference. They did more with theirs."

Of Simpson, Landry said, "He's a great back and a great runner. He did most of it on individual ability. This is an individual ability type of game."

Simpson, who gained 1,251 yards rushing last season to lead the NFL, was enthusiastic about the AFC offensive line after four years behind the Buffalo Bills front that has been plagued by inexperience and injuries.

"Running behind these guys is a pleasure," he said. He singled out Oakland's Gene Upshaw, Walt Sweeney of San Diego, Larry Little of Super Bowl Champion Miami and Winston Hill of the New York Jets.

The NFC's John Brockington of Green Bay was not too concerned about the rivalry angle of the game. "This was a fun game," he said, "Nobody got hurt and that's the big thing."

Cochran tops Americans in ski test

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
David Zwilling and Monika Kaserer of Austria gained ground on the leaders Sunday in the World Cup ski standings. Zwilling finished fourth in a special slalom race, the Grand Prix de Megeve at Megeve, France, and picked up 11 points on the leader, Roland Collombin of Switzerland. Collombin, a downhill specialist, did not compete at Megeve and had his lead over Zwilling sliced to 104.102.

Meanwhile, at Contamines, France,

Miss Kaserer raced to victory in the women's giant slalom, covering the wind-whipped, foggy, 1,250-meter course in 1 minute, 23.10 seconds. That gave her 126 points for the season to 178 for Austrian teammate Annemarie Proell, who lost her goggles during Sunday's and finished eighth.

The Grand Prix de Megeve went to Christian Neureuther, a West German medical student, who outraced defending World Cup champion Gustavo Thoeni of Italy in the first leg and maintained his lead in the second leg through a worsening snowstorm.

Neureuther's times were 56.97 seconds and 54.58 for a total of 1:51.55. Thoeni finished second with 57.56-55.0—1:52.56 and Walter Tresch of Switzerland was third.

The top American was Bob Cochran of Richmond, Vt., who was 10th with 58.10-55.87—1:53.97. Eric Poulsen of Olympic Valley, Calif., was 22nd.

"I think we're just getting into really competitive form now," said Hans Peter Rohr, the United States men's coach. "I'm very optimistic about the rest of the season."

West Germany's Traudi Treichl finished second to Miss Kaserer in the women's giant slalom. Her time was 1:23.40. Marilyn Cochran, Bob's sister, was third in 1:23.88 and another sister, Barbara, finished 15th in 1:25.74. Sandra Poulsen, Eric's sister, was 17th, Susie Corcock of Seattle, Wash., was 19th and Patty Boydstun of McCall, Idaho, was 29th.

2nd straight victory

Crampton wins Tucson tourney

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bruce Crampton has taken two in a row, but the Australian veteran harbors no illusions about winning three consecutive events on the tough American pro golf tour.

"No, I don't think so," Crampton said with an almost sad smile when asked if he planned to make this week's Bing Crosby National Pro-Am his third successive triumph.

"This one took a lot out of me," Crampton said Sunday after his easy, front-running victory in the Dean Martin-Tucson Open, a decision that was tarnished just a trifle by a meaningless triple bogey seven on Crampton's finishing hole.

"I'm pretty tired," he said. "I didn't sleep very well all week. I came in here knowing I was playing well. I was keyed up, ready to get on with it."

"Now that it's over, I'm really tired." Crampton's victory, following his triumph at the Phoenix Open just the week before, made him the first man to win consecutive American tournaments since Arnold Palmer took the last two events of the 1969 season. Palmer also is the last player to win three in a row, in 1962.

Breezes home.

Crampton opened the final day's play—the start was delayed 1½ hours by frozen greens and biting, 20-degree temperatures—with a three-stroke lead, eagled the second hole and wasn't threatened as he breezed home with a 71 for 277, 11 under par on the 7,200 yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

George Archer, who lost to Miller Barber in a playoff for the Tucson title a year ago, Labron Harris and Gay Brewer tied for second at 282. Archer had a 72 while Harris and Brewer matched 70s in the weather that changed from bitter cold to mild and sunny.

Rod Funseth, winner of the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open three weeks ago, Bobby Nichols and Riahie Karl were next at 283. Nichols shot 72, Karl 73 and Funseth 74.

Lee Trevino, a two-time Tucson champion and the pre-tourney favorite, really was never in it. He had a final round 70 for 285.

Crampton, winner of 12 titles in his 17 years on the American tour, picked up $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 and pushed his earnings to $60,000 for just two weeks.

reserve acceleration.

Trapp, who injured a leg a week ago in Canadian racing, moved into second position on the fifth lap. Jim Adema of Belmont, Mich., finished third.

The civic club which helps sponsor the races had circled the track with two fences, delineating a corridor four-feet wide which spectators were expected to keep clear.

The double fencing was a result of a 1972 accident in which a Minnesota child was killed when a snowmobile ripped through a barrier into a crowd.

Drivers were tethered to their machines' ignition switches, designed to turn off the ignition when a driver is thrown.

Officials said only two drivers required appreciable medical treatment during the three-day affair, both for shoulder injuries.

Eastman was awarded $3,500 for his victory. Trapp won $1,400 and Adema $700.

Adema also won Modified III and Modified IV races, each worth $1,600 to him.

Yvon DuHamel of Quebec, a former winner of the feature, did not qualify this year. He won the Modified V race.

Hollis Zschokke of Oshkosh won the open class race.

Next on the race circuit is Rhinelander's ninth annual Hodag rally, later this week.

Kaukauna girls win

KAUKAUNA — The Kaukauna High School girls basketball team ran its Fox Valley Association record to 3-0 recently by downing Menasha, 39-29.

The winners were consistent, scoring 10 points in each of the first three quarters and nine in the fourth. Menasha, meanwhile, had nine in the first, seven in the second and third and six in the final period. Nancy Herman, of Menasha led all scorers with 18 points, Gail Alger hit 14 and Sue Barribeau 12 for the winners.

Cold floor shooting dooms St. John '5'

FOND DU LAC — Accuracy from the free throw line combined with cold St. John shooting from the field, enabled St. Mary's Springs to defeat the Dutchmen, 62-51, in a Fox Valley Christian Conference game Saturday night.

The Dutchmen, who are now 6-6 in league play, made 18 free throws in 23 attempts during the game. St. John (4-8), which beat the Springs, 67-62, earlier this season, managed to connect on only 18 of 57 field shots for a 31.5 per cent rate of accuracy.

Ignited by the fine outside shooting of Bob Bauman, who scored 16 of his 18 points in the first half, the Dutchmen grabbed a 12-point (32-20) lead with 3:02 left until intermission.

But the Dutchmen scored 12 straight points to begin the third quarter to grab a 43-35 advantage. Dave Shaw led the Dutchmen after intermission with 18 points during the final two periods.

After leading, 47-41 after three quarters, Springs outscored the Dutchmen, 15-10, in the final period.

The Dutchmen, who made 22 field goals in 50 tries (44 per cent) during the contest, were sparked by Shaw's 18 markers. Bob Freund added 16 and Marty O'Brien 12.

UCLA streak reaches 59

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Associated Press Sports Writer

Who's No. 1 in college basketball? Why, UCLA, of course.

Who's nervous? UCLA Coach John Wooden, naturally.

Despite winning their 59th straight victory with a convincing 101-77 decision over ninth-ranked Providence Saturday night, the Bruins were still a matter of concern for their constantly uneasy leader.

"I expect a tough weekend in the Midwest," said Wooden as his team zeroed in on the all-time winning streak.

After beating two Top Ten teams over the weekend—they mashed No. 10 San Francisco the night before—it would seem that the record of 60 straight is within easy grasp of the defending national champions.

The Bruins will play Loyola of Chicago this Thursday night and Notre Dame on Saturday. Both are theoretically not in UCLA's class but nevertheless weigh heavily in Wooden's thoughts as his team tries to break San Francisco's great record of the 1950s.

"Every team is out to break our winning streak," said Wooden. "They know they can make their season by doing it."

The Pacific-8 Conference powerhouse had some fidgety moments in the first half Saturday night, holding a 44-36 halftime advantage. Then center Bill Walton came back from a first-half ankle injury and took charge of the rebounding war to spearhead a Bruin blitz.

In other games involving ranked teams, second-ranked North Carolina State notched an 86-76 decision over Clemson; No. 3 Maryland trimmed Navy 76-67; No. 4 North Carolina downed Duke 82-71; fifth-ranked Long Beach State clouted Creighton 68-51; 16th-ranked Indiana upset No. 6 Minnesota 83-71; seventh-ranked Marquette destroyed South Carolina 71-54 and No. 8 Missouri tripped Kansas 75-72. San Francisco was idle.

Wurster wins skating title

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Richie Wurster of the suburban West Allis, Wis., Skating Club captured senior men's honors in the Great Lakes speed skating championships Sunday with a two-day total of 15 points.

Wurster, runnerup the past two years, won the three-quarter mile race, placed second in the 440 and third in the two-mile Sunday.

Wurster's 15 points were two more than piled up by teammate Mike Woods. West Allis won the team title with 99 points, 33 more than runnerup Madison, Wis.

Woods fell during the 440 event and had to settle for fifth place behind winner Bill Heinkel of West Allis. Woods, who won the two-mile, dropped from the three-quarter mile test after another spill.

Nancy Class, 18, took the senior women's crown in her first try in that division with 17 points. Miss Class, representing St. Paul, Minn., Midway, won the 440 and 880 and placed fifth in the mile, which was won by West Allis' Kris Garbe.

The two day meet saw 19 records shattered. Ron Muck, Park Ridge, Ill., set marks in the one-sixth mile, 440, 220 and one-third mile in winning midget boys' honors, while Jeff Widmark of the Northwest, Ill., club set records for the pony boys' one-sixth mile, 220 and 440.

Milwaukee County was third in team standings with 62 points, followed by Unattached with 57; Northwest 48; Park Ridge, Ill., 39; Northbrook, Ill., 38; Midway 33; Clayton 17; Wolverine 16.

Courts

David L. Roes, 18, route 1, Kaukauna, was charged Thursday with the theft of a tape player, case and three tapes, valued together at $80, from a car owned by Michael Carney, route 5, Appleton, while it was parked at Freedom High School on Wednesday.

Roes appeared before Judge R. Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where bond was set at $200 and the case continued to today.

Police & fire beat

Gary H. Hopfensperger, 26, 1426 N. Division St., was taken by private ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital about 1 a.m. Sunday after he received head and throat cuts in a two-car accident at the intersection of Marquette and Erb streets.

Police said Hopfensperger's car was headed south on Erb when it was struck from the right side by a car driven by Carla K. Zimmer, 16, 2315 N. Superior St., moving east on Marquette.

The Hopfensperger auto was pushed across the southeast corner of the intersection and lodged against a tree. Fire department rescue workers had to remove a door to free the victim. The Zimmer girl and a passenger, Deborah J. Bennett, 17, 519 N. Garfield Place, were taken to St. Elizabeth for examination, but were apparently uninjured.

Richard L. Minnihan, 1935 Grove St., Oshkosh, reported the loss of his $70 wristwatch late Saturday or early Sunday while he was at the VFW post, 501 N. Richmond St.

Two stereo speakers, one amplifier and one turntable, valued together at $780, were reported taken in a break-in at the Clifford M. Dobbe residence, 407 N. Richmond St., late Saturday or early Sunday.

Police said entry was gained by breaking a 10 by 40-inch glass window pane in a rear door to get at an inside lock.

Three persons were injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of Lawe and South River streets about 12:45 p.m. Sunday.

One driver, Muriel L. Rammer, 48, 42 Sherman Place, suffered chest injuries, while her daughter Gail, 18, received head injuries. The other driver, Raymond G. Lison, 18, 522 N. Lawe St., suffered leg wounds.

Police said the Lison auto was headed south on Lawe when it struck the Rammer car, moving east on South River.

Robert Ebben, route 1, Appleton, reported Friday the theft of a 20-inch chain saw from his garage between Jan 10 and 16 to Outagamie County police.

Lynn Bazile, 2722 N. Richmond St., reported the theft Friday of a $185 battery charger from the building to Outagamie County police.

MADISON — Richard E. Peterson, former Waupaca County representative in the Assembly who has widened his lobbying clientele in recent years, has listed new retainers on the lobbyists' register in the secretary of state's office.

Among his clients thus far reported for the 1973 session of the legislature are the Wisconsin Manufactured Housing Association, Kohl's Food Stores, the Wisconsin Advertising Association, the Wisconsin Periodical Distributors Association, the Wisconsin Retail Hardware Association, and the Wisconsin Suburban League.

Dueling penalty repeal to be aired Tuesday

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Among state legislative hearings scheduled this week is one on a joint senate resolution to repeal Wisconsin's constitutional provision which discriminates against persons engaged in dueling.

On Tuesday, the Senate Judiciary and Insurance Committee will discuss repeal of the provision which disqualifies persons who duel from voting and holding public office.

In more current matters, the Assembly Judiciary Committee will discuss three bills proposed for newsmen's shield laws. The bills would permit newsmen to refuse to disclose confidential information or sources to grand juries and other governmental bodies.

In another session Tuesday, the same committee will hold hearings on bill A-23, which eliminates discrimination based on sex in state laws.

Other bills scheduled for hearings this week include one on allowing both boys and girls to marry at age 16 with consent; a proposal which would prohibit television blackouts of well-attended sporting events.

The Assembly Commerce and Consumer Affairs Committee has scheduled another session in its general hearings into the fuel shortage in Wisconsin for Tuesday.

DNR can't afford crackdown on air pollution violators

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "It isn't worth it" for the state Department of Natural Resources to hold air pollution hearings in Wisconsin counties and communities and then bill them for it, the head of the agency's Bureau of Air Pollution Control said Thursday.

Douglas Evans told a group of environmental activists that the state, which has the power to hold hearings in such a manner, is hampered because it lacks the personnel or funds to do a proper job in pollution control.

"We could find every county deficient if we wanted to go to the trouble of holding hearings," he said.

Evans commented after a woman asked him why Waukesha County had not taken action against a polluter there.

Waukesha County "has done nothing," he said, and neither have most of the other 71 Wisconsin counties.

The meeting was held to acquaint Wisconsin residents with provisions of the new U.S. Clean Air Act.

Marvin Zeldin, an environmental consultant from Washington, D.C., said that, if citizens feel government agencies are not aggressively pursuing polluters, they can file suit against the polluters or government agencies under the new federal law.

Mob credited with finding gems

Abortion restrictions invalidated

NEW YORK (AP) — An FBI official says organized crime may have played a major role in the return of nearly all of the rare jewels stolen less than two weeks ago from a Roman Catholic shrine in Brooklyn.

Two diamond-studded gold crowns, four diamond stars and a cluster of diamonds were found Sunday afternoon in a coin locker at the East Side Airlines Terminal in Manhattan.

The tip came from an anonymous "gruff-speaking" man who called the FBI office in Manhattan asking by name for the agent working on the heist of jewels Jan. 10 from the Regina Pacis Votive Shrine of St. Rosalia's Church.

"We believe organized crime may have been instrumental in recovering the jewels," said John F. Malone, director of the FBI's New York office. "That doesn't mean that organized crime was responsible for stealing it. But we believe that they may have played a major part in recovering it."

A diamond earring, a diamond necklace and a diamond bracelet were still missing. The jewels are insured for $100,000 but parishioners say they are worth many times that amount.

City police four days earlier had arrested and charged two unemployed construction workers and a 17-year-old girl with grand larceny and burglary in the theft. No organized crime help was received, police said.

Many reputed underworld figures are parishioners of the church in the Borough Park section of Brooklyn, including Don Carlos Gambino, described by authorities as the "boss of bosses."

The incident recalled a similar theft in 1952. The shrine jewels were mysteriously returned that time also, reportedly after word was put out that underworld leader Joseph Profaci wanted them back.

Much sentimental value has been attached to the jewels, placed on the shrine to peace created by parishioners shortly after World War II. Now the jewels are expected to be removed from permanent public display and placed in a vault.

"We'll never again put them back where they were," said the Rev. Anthony F. LoGatto, pastor of St. Rosalia's. "It's too much of a temptation."

4 gunmen give up after siege

By Bob Monroe
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Four gunmen who had vowed to die for Muslim paradise in a hail of police bullets have surrendered peacefully after their nine remaining hostages made a dramatic escape to signal the end of a two-day siege in a Brooklyn sporting goods store.

The end came late Sunday afternoon, over 47 hours after a silent robbery alarm alerted police who surprised the young gunmen in the store. One patrolman was killed and two others wounded in a flurry of gunfire.

After the initial shootout subsided to a standoff, police ringed John & Al's Sports, Inc., in Brooklyn's Williamsburg section with sharpshooters. But fear for the hostages prevented any forced showdown and police concentrated on keeping communications with the gunmen.

The break came shortly before 1 p.m. Sunday when the hostages, led by a co-owner of the store, broke through plasterboard to a sealed off stairway and escaped to the roof while the gunmen were diverted.

Four hours later, following more negotiations with police and pleas from some relatives, the gunmen walked out. Two carried a stretcher with a third who was wounded and the fourth walked ahead.

Police said preliminary reports indicated their marksmen had not fired a shot since the original gunbattle, although the gunmen had fired volleys from time to time.

Police identified the four by their

Midweek indicated for initialing of accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — As captured enemy documents signaled a midweek initialing of a cease-fire accord, Henry A. Kissinger flew back to Paris today to join allied and Communist officials in the last steps toward ending the Vietnam war.

Before the presidential assistant left rain-swept Andrews Air Force Base at mid-morning, he met with President Nixon for an hour at the White House to get last-minute instructions.

Kissinger met with President Nixon for an hour today in preparation for the negotiator's departure for nearby Andrews Air Force Base and the flight to Paris.

Officially, the White House continued to portray the purpose of Kissinger's return to the French capital as "completing the text of an agreement" to end the fight.

But a flurry of developments Sunday bolstered the belief that an agreement soon will be signed, calling for a cease-fire, the return of prisoners of war, and machinery to reshape the South Vietnamese government. The major developments:

—Senior South Vietnamese officials said captured documents from the Communist high command stated that an agreement will be initiated at 8 a.m. EST Wednesday, that it will be formally signed on Saturday and that a cease-fire will go into effect on Sunday, Jan. 28.

—While shying away from specific dates, Washington sources indicated that Nixon has set a goal of wrapping up the Vietnam agreement this week and that, barring unexpected snags, the President is confident of hitting that target.

—South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam told an interviewer as he departed for Paris that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will be in Saigon on Jan. 28, presumably to demonstrate that Washington and Saigon were entering the post-war era shoulder-to-shoulder.

—Agnew himself said he couldn't answer when asked whether he will be heading for Saigon, saying the President would have to make "that announcement."

—Congressional sources reported that Nixon plans a meeting with Capitol Hill leaders within the next few days, providing him a forum to brief them on details of a peace accord.

—The Viet Cong foreign minister, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, arrived in Paris and said the Communists are ready to "do everything possible to achieve a quick settlement." But, she said, "everything depends on the United States." Mrs. Binh said the proposed agreement offers the United States "an honorable way out of its dirty war."

Parochial aid tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a 1972 New York law providing various forms of assistance to parochial schools and the parents of children attending them.

Two provisions of the law were struck down as constitutionally invalid last October by a federal district court in New York City. A third provision was upheld by the panel.

The Supreme Court, acting on appeals, agreed to consider all three provisions beginning with a hearing in April.

The high court already has under consideration a 1970 state law appropriating $28 million a year for record-keeping, testing and other services in the nonpublic schools.

About 750,000, or 18 per cent of all school-children in New York state, attend nonpublic schools. Most of these schools are Roman Catholic.

The cases accepted by the Supreme Court for review involve:

1. Allowing families with gross incomes of up to $25,000 a year and who pay at least $50 a year in tuition to parochial schools to exclude as much as $3,000 from their state income tax. (This provision was upheld in the district court, 2 to 1.)

2. Providing about 280 parochial schools in densely populated urban areas with as much as $4 million a year in all for heat, lights, custodial services, and the like. (This provision was struck down unanimously by the district court as in violation of the First Amendment's prohibition establishment of religion.)

3. Direct payments of $50 an elementary pupil and $100 a high school pupil for parents with net taxable incomes of less than $5,000 a year. (This provision also was struck down unanimously as in violation of the establishment clause.)

Death toll could reach 191 in Nigerian crash

KANO, Nigeria (AP) — A Jordanian jetliner bringing 202 Moslems home from a pilgrimage to Mecca crashed on landing in a fog here today and burst into flames. Officials said most were killed.

The death toll was variously given as 162 and 191 as rescue teams went through the burned wreckage. Radio Nigeria reported about 40 survivors, but officials here said they have recovered 11 persons alive.

A witness said the plane was engulfed in flames after it crashed on the runway at about 10 a.m.

Army troops, police, firemen and health workers were called in to help search for bodies and survivors and to clear the wreckage.

Airport officials said the plane's captain and three crewmen were reported among the survivors but all were seriously injured.

Officials said the plane was to have landed in Lagos, Nigeria's capital, but was diverted to Kano because of bad weather.

Thousands of Nigerians poured into the tiny airport, wailing and shouting their grief over the dead, most of whom were believed to be Nigerians.

The airport is five miles from the center of Kano, a city famous for its links with Islamic culture and its traditional market place.

It's the wrong man

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Police at Birkerød, north of Copenhagen, are looking for a man who sneaked into a house at night and had sexual relations with a woman who thought he was her husband.

The 46-year-old woman said she did not discover her mistake until the intruder was climbing out of bed again and she discovered her husband snoring in the other bed, police said.

Her shrieks woke up the husband and their three children, but the man got away.

Police are treating the matter as a case of rape although the woman admitted that she willingly submitted and had no complaints until she discovered that her bedmate was a stranger.

However, the police said the man could be charged with violating an ancient Danish law that provides for up to four years imprisonment for "tricking a woman into the act of love by pretending to be her wedded husband."

The world's worst air disaster took the lives of 176 persons in the crash of a Soviet Aeroflot jet near Moscow last Oct. 14.

Mecca, the holiest place of Moslems, is in Saudi Arabia.

The Royal Jordanian Airlines Boeing 707 left Saudi Arabia from Jidda, near Mecca, on the 2,100-mile flight to Kano.

Officials in Lagos, 30 miles south of Kano, said communications with Kano were down and for this reason R. A. B. Dikko, Nigeria's commissioner of transport, was flying to the scene of the crash at Kano's airport.

These officials said it was not likely that a full report on the crash will be available before Tuesday.

The ruling followed two years of deliberations by the justices. It was based predominantly on what Blackmun called a right of privacy. He said the right "is broad enough to encompass a woman's decision whether or not to terminate her pregnancy."

Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist dissented. White said he could "find nothing in the language or history of the Constitution to support the court's judgment."

Rehnquist, meanwhile, said "the court's sweeping invalidation of any restrictions on abortion during the first trimester is impossible to justify."

In a second 7 to 2 ruling, the court struck down Georgia's abortion law, finding three provisions to be unconstitutional. They were that in the first three months the operation be performed in an accredited hospital, that a medical committee must give its approval and that two physicians must concur with the woman's own physician that the pregnancy should be terminated.

Blackmun said the "interposition of a hospital abortion committee is unduly restrictive of the patients' rights."

Summarized, the court held:

1. The states are barred from restricting abortions within the first three months.

2. In this period the abortion decision must be left to the medical judgment of the pregnant woman's own physician.

3. After the first three months the state, if it chooses, may regulate abortion procedures "in ways that are reasonably related to maternal health."

4. In approximately the last three months of pregnancy, the state may if it chooses, regulate and even prohibit abortions to preserve the expectant mother's life or health.

5. The state may allow only licensed physicians to perform abortions and may prohibit abortions by nonphysicians.

Blackmun wound up his 51-page opinion with these remarks:

"This holding, we feel, is consistent with the relative weights of the respective interests involved, with the lessons and example of medical and legal history, with the lenity of the common law, and with the demands of the profound problems of the present day."

"The decision leaves the states free to place increasing restrictions on abortion as the period of pregnancy lengthens, so long as those restrictions are tailored to the recognized state interests."

"The decision vindicates the right of the physician to administer medical treatment according to his professional judgment up to the points where important state interests provide compelling justifications for intervention."

"Up to those points the abortion decision in all its aspects is inherently and primarily a medical decision, and basic responsibility for it must rest with the physician."

Some states prohibit abortions without the consent of the father. Since the Georgia and Texas laws do not have such provisions, the court's action today did not deal with that question.

Pending before the court are cases dealing with the abortion laws of Missouri, Illinois, North Carolina, Louisiana, Virginia, New Jersey, Utah, Ohio, Kentucky, Connecticut, South Dakota and New York.

The court took no immediate action on them.

Justice White, in dissent today, called the ruling "an exercise of raw judicial power." He said the judgment was "improvident and extravagant" and that the court had "scarcely any reason or authority for its action."

He wrote "The court apparently values the convenience of the pregnant mother more than the continued existence and development of the life or potential life which she carries."

Rehnquist, in his dissent, wrote "The decision here to break the term of pregnancy into three distinct terms and to outline the permissible restrictions the state may impose in each one, for example, partakes more of judicial legislation than it does of a determination of the intent of the drafters of the 14th Amendment."

Boy buried, chained, assaulted

NANSEMOND, Va. (AP) — Police in two states today sought a man with a history of sex crimes after a 13-year-old boy who was held eight days in a wooden box was found by rabbit hunters.

"If it hadn't been for four rabbit hunters, I doubt if anyone ever would have found the boy," said Police Sgt. S. B. Chapman.

The boy was discovered Friday in a large wooden box buried in the ground. Police said he had been kept chained and had been sexually assaulted.

Richard W. Ausley, 32, a Portsmouth carpenter and a prison parolee, was named in warrants charging him with abduction and sexual assault. Ausley was being sought in southeastern Virginia and northeastern North Carolina, but had not been found early today.

Police said Ausley, paroled in 1971 after serving a prison term on a similar charge, was an "accomplished woodsman" and might have fled into the vast Dismal Swamp, a 300-square-mile area of heavily wooded swampland in the two states.

Chapman described Ausley as "armed and very dangerous."

Four rabbit hunters told police they were at the dead end of a logging road in a remote area Friday morning when they saw a boy's head suddenly rise up out of a six-foot mound of earth.

Police said the boy began crying, then explained he had been kidnaped by a man who picked him up on a Portsmouth street and asked him if he wanted some work helping move furniture.

The boy had a chain attached to his left leg and the chain was secured to a nail driven in the side of the plywood box. Police said the box had been meticulously built, was six feet long, four feet wide and five feet deep with enough room for two people.

The box was covered with earth and leaves and contained various survival items, including food and water.

The boy told police he had been beaten and sexually assaulted repeatedly in the eight days he was held prisoner. He was released to his parents after treatment at a local hospital for a broken nose, a broken tooth and facial injuries.

The boy told police that the last time he saw his abductor was about 8 p.m. Thursday — 12 hours before he was found.

On Jan. 11, the day of the alleged abduction, Ausley was scheduled to appear for a preliminary hearing in Portsmouth Juvenile Court on a sexual assault charge involving another boy about the same age. He did not show up, police said.

Ausley also was charged with failure to report to the probation officer supervising his parole from the State Penitentiary on a 1961 charge in Suffolk of kidnaping and sexually assaulting a 10-year-old boy, police said. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison and was released on parole last November.

Antismoking clinic convinces reporter

This is the first of two parts on a first-hand experience in stopping the smoking habit

By SONYA ZALUBOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Night after night, the grisly evidence of the effect of cigarettes on health was paraded before a curiously eager audience in a Milwaukee suburb.

All 100 of the participants were smokers—the very same people non-smoking friends and relatives had been trying, probably what seemed forever, to get to read anti-smoking articles and “quit that nasty habit.”

But, here they were. Many had come voluntarily and all, including this reporter, seemed eager to confess, “Yes, I am hooked on cigarettes.”

The occasion was the beginning of the “Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking,” sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventists, a religious body which does not condone smoking or alcohol.

The group's affiliation with the smoking clinic at Elmbrook Memorial Hospital in Brookfield wasn't alluded to until the final night of the sessions, perhaps out of concern that a religious tone would drive people away.

Nevertheless, an evangelistic feeling surrounded the clinic as it progressed—the smokers seemed anxious to admit smoking was a problem and meet it head-on, deciding for themselves how they wanted to handle it.

For this reporter it was almost a feeling of relief. All the years of dodging non-smokers' nagging and all the years of subconsciously realizing I should quit could now come out in the open.

Clinic moderator Rev. Wightman, who is also assistant administrator of the Adventists' hospital at Hinsdale, Ill., started off the proceedings on a reassuring note. Over 8,000 persons had kicked the habit through the nine years of the program and with less discomfort than usual, he said.

After being told we wouldn't be alone in the initial struggle, Wightman asked for the true confessions. “How long have you smoked and how much per day?”

The same people who may have just told a relative they didn't inhale or didn't quite smoke a pack a day competed with each other to get the truth out.

“I've smoked 52 years, over a pack a day,” one elderly man beamed.

Another admitted he had to get up during the night to smoke and several said the first thing they looked forward to in the morning was that cigarette.

I had come to the course thinking it probably wouldn't convince me and even if it did I still had the luxury of five days to make the break with cigarettes. Just in case, of course, I'd chain-smoked my way to the course.

Then Wightman asked the toughest question: “Do you choose not to smoke as of tonight?” He emphasized “choose” and guaranteed the audience they wouldn't stick to their resolve if they were doing it for some other reason than personal conviction.

We were told what we faced: a neuro-muscular habit and a chemical addiction. The average smoker puffs away at 10,000 cigarettes a year. That means he goes through the cigarette motions that many times not an easy habit to break.

The chemical addiction is to nicotine. A cigarette first lifts, then depresses. That requires another to retrieve the “lift” feeling, Wightman said. Then there's the cost factor. The habit can run from $200 upward a year.

But all this was just scratching the surface. It was a preliminary tickling of the smoker's pride to prod him to admit he was addicted and get him to form the question: “Am I tough enough to break the habit?”

Wightman advised the audience to zero in on that objective for the entire week—quitting smoking. He said major decisions should be put off and as associates and relatives warned that the struggle had begun.

Wightman had promised help and he wasn't going to strand us with that crucial decision. Now some of the health facts the reinforcements began.

The first session dwelt on smoking and cancer of the lungs. A specialist in lung surgery stood in front of the audience and practically begged us to stop smoking.

Cigarette smoking is responsible for three out of four lung cancers, the doctor said. Heavy smokers had 20 times more chance of developing it than non-smokers.

About the only other factors contributing to the disease were unknown hereditary factors and inhalation of certain chemicals and dusts.

He illustrated the facts by showing slides of malignant tumors which had changed healthy lung tissue into blackened and pitted masses.

Incidence of the disease had climbed in direct proportion to increases in cigarette consumption according to the American Cancer Society. The corks were percentage of recovery. Currently, 95 per cent of those with the disease die within five years.

And so the first session ended with what had become for me a clearly defined choice: slavish attention to a habit which could produce a monstrous, possibly incurable disease versus a decision to exercise my own will power and quit.

Pretty strong words for a smoker who had ignored appeals to quit for 10 years. Would they be able to carry me through, I thought, as I dumped my pack of cigarettes into a box. The clinic planned to use the abandoned “weeds” in laboratories to kill animals in their studies of cancer.

Helpful Heating Hints to beat the rising cost of winter ... through energy conservation!

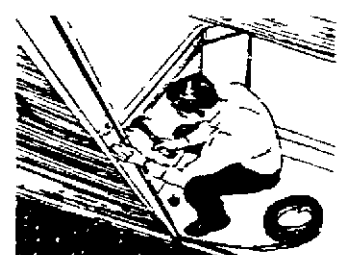

Our concern for conservation includes the wise and efficient use of all forms of energy—not just electricity. The dollars you spend to heat your home this winter can bring you more heating comfort if you know how to get the most value from your heating system.

All automatic heating systems, regardless of the fuel used, require electric power to operate blowers and pumps. That's why we're publishing these heating hints. By following them you can increase your personal comfort, keep your energy costs reasonable and increase the efficiency of your heating system.

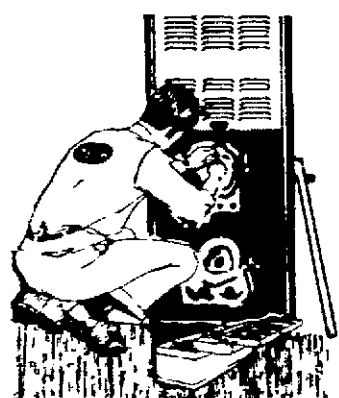

Set your thermostat for a comfortable temperature, then leave it alone. Don't continually readjust it. Most people are comfortable at about 72°. Every degree over this increases fuel consumption significantly. You may wish to lower the setting to 65° at night or when you leave the house for more than 12 hours to save on fuel and operating costs.

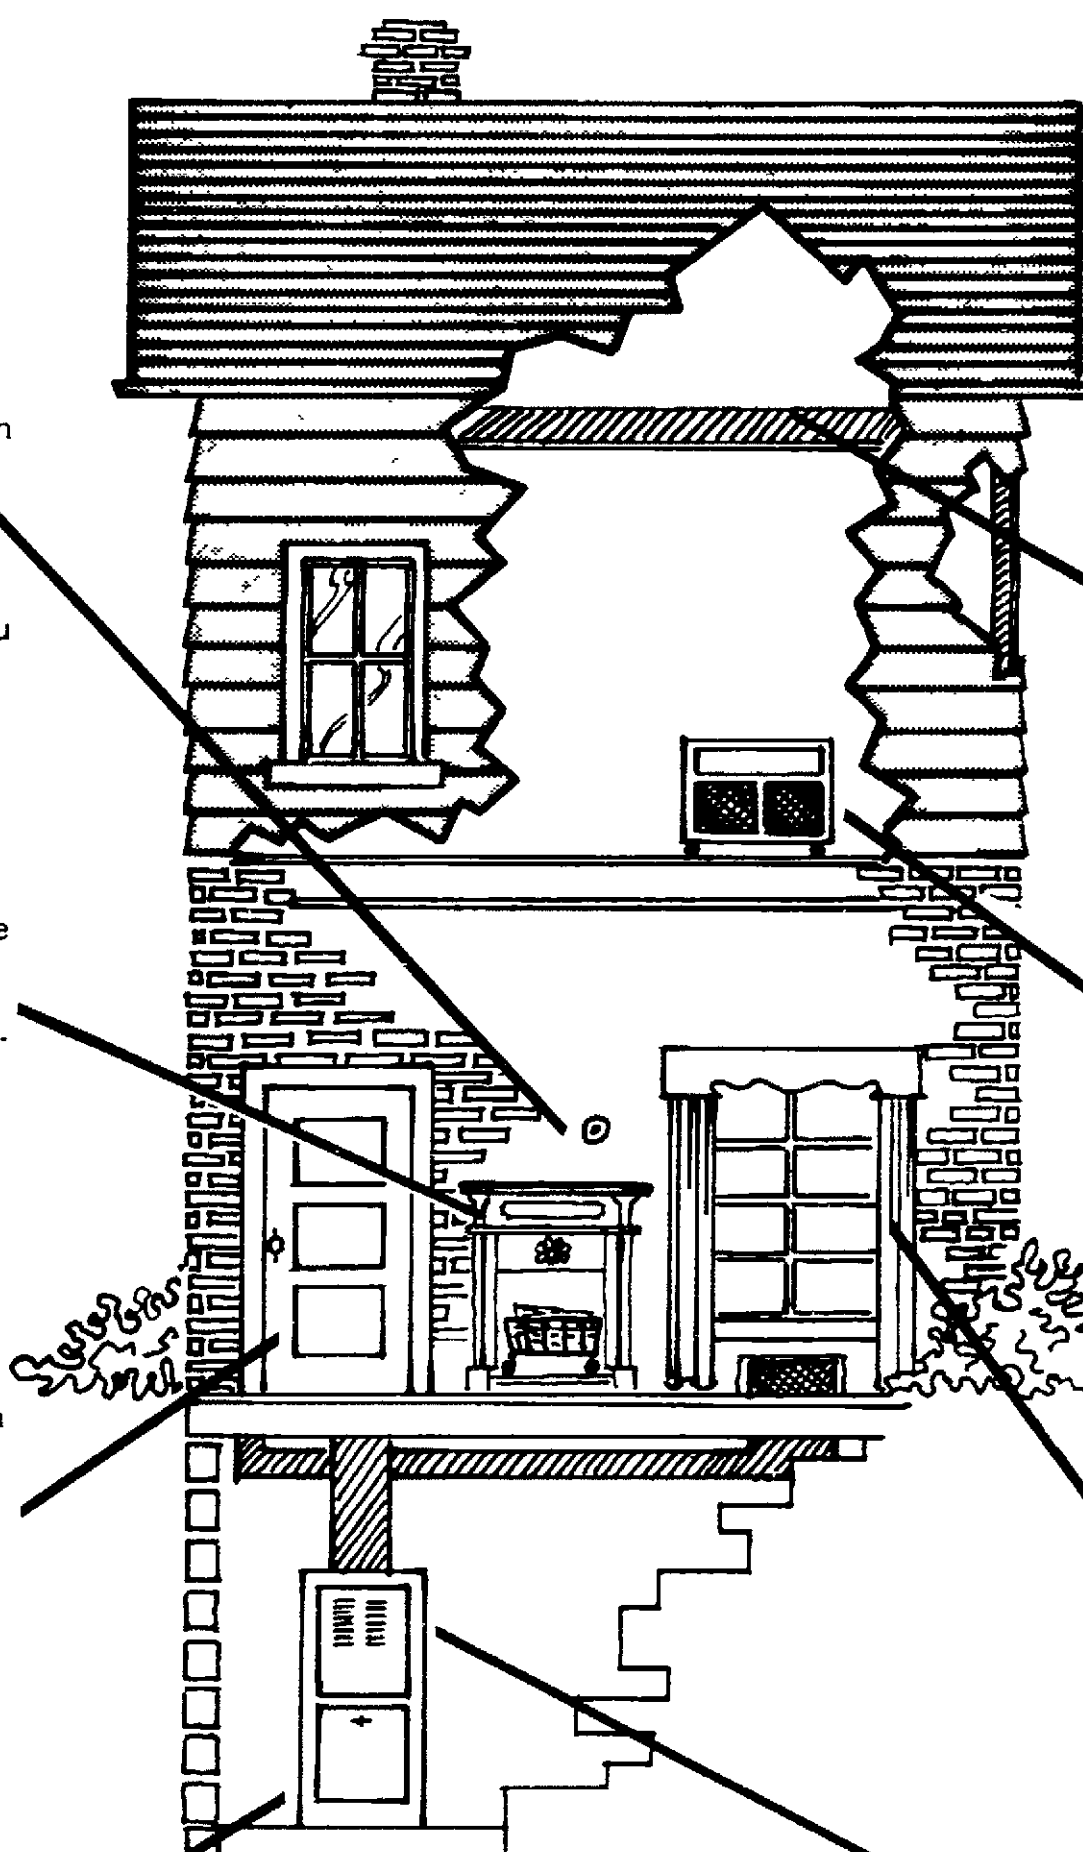

If you have a fireplace, keep the damper closed when it is not being used to stop heat from escaping up the chimney.

Check doors and windows for a snug fit and weatherstrip where necessary. Caulk the exterior frames of all windows and doors, too. Preventing warm air leakage or cold air infiltration can greatly reduce your heating costs.

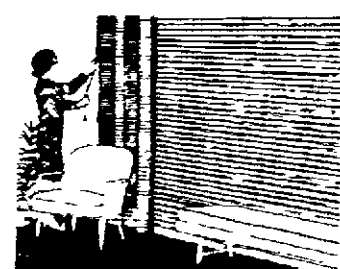

Give your heating unit a checkup. But, don't try to service it yourself. Contact a qualified heating dealer. Cleaning and inspecting furnace controls and mechanisms will keep your unit operating at maximum efficiency... providing the most heat for your dollar.

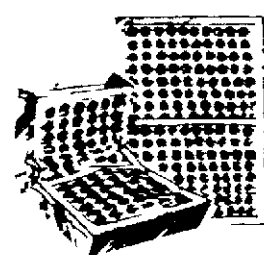

Adequate insulation cuts fuel costs. Warm air rises, so the ceiling or attic floor is the most essential area to insulate. If the attic isn't insulated, place batts or “loose insulation” with a good insulation rating between ceiling joists. If you think the side walls are not properly insulated, check with an insulation expert as to what can be done. Good insulation also keeps your house cooler in the summer.

If the air in your home seems desert-dry, use a humidifier to keep the relative humidity at a higher level. You'll need less heat to feel comfortable.

When the sun is shining, open drapes or blinds to let the heat of the sun into the house. This is free heat. No sun? Then keep window coverings closed to act as additional insulation to keep heat in and cold air out.

Change or clean furnace filters several times a year on a forced air heating system. These filters trap dust and help keep your air clean. Dirty filters restrict air flow and reduce the efficiency of your heating system.

OTHER HELPFUL HINTS

Make certain that heat outlets and return air vents in every room are free of obstructions which may prevent good circulation of air.

Turn off radiators or close registers in rooms not used in winter and keep room doors closed. If you have electric heat with a thermostat in every room, you can simply regulate the heat in each room.

Try to curtail in-and-out traffic to have outside doors open as briefly as possible. Be careful, too, about opening and closing doors to unheated areas such as the basement, attic and garage.

December, January and February account for the bulk of your heating bill so be especially prudent in those months.

Lake driving good, but slow

Driving conditions on Lake Winnebago are good, Calumet County Conservation Warden Richard Streng, Chilton, said today, but he advised motorists to avoid excessive speeds because of the presence of cracks in the ice.

A crack which caused a number of weekend fishermen to take an unexpected dip in the icy waters, "is no worse than other years," Streng said. But last week's rain and warm temperatures have made the break in the ice more difficult to see. It is open and flat, he said, with no ice heaved up as it was a week ago.

He said the crack stretches from a point between Neenah and Menasha southeast to the middle of the lake and then southward down the center. It turns and runs along the east shore, he said, ranging from five or six miles out at Stockbridge to only a mile and one half out at Calumetville and Pipe.

The absence of snow on the ice, due to the recent warming, has made braking at fast speeds hazardous, Streng said.

There is no snow to slow motorists down when they finally do see the crack, he added, saying: "They slide for hundreds of feet before stopping. It's really slippery."

Motorists who slid into any of the cracks in the ice over the weekend may have been traveling too fast or did not follow marked trails and bridges, Streng said. "Some cars are whipping around out there at 50 and 65 miles an hour," he said.

Prudent driving, following trail managers' advice and sticking to established roads and bridges should make getting about on the 20-inch-thick (overall average) ice a safe experience for all people on the lake, the conservation warden added.

He advised motorists to stay away from a spring hole near a boat landing near High Cliff State Park and river mouths.

Several fishermen in late model cars Saturday slid into the crack that had developed south of Quinney through to Calumetville. Cars driving along at brisk rates of speed because the smooth ice slid into the flat unnoticeable crack.

Charles Lisowe, who maintains the Quinney Road, and Earl Ecker, Stockbridge, were kept busy pulling the cars out of the crack. Most of the autos sustained front end damage, broken axes, lights and windows. Lisowe took James Goesser of New Holstein to Calumet Memorial Hospital at Chilton where he was treated for facial cuts after he hit the windshield of his car as it fell into the crack.

David Puetz, route 2, Chilton, lost his 1968 car as it sank in the crack between Brothertown and Quinney. Puetz, along with his three children, ages 10 to 16, and Stanley Schmitz, 17, left Brothertown at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. They were driving along when suddenly the crack was there, Puetz said. "I knew we were not going to make it because the car slipped sideways into the crack. We jumped out of the windows before the car sank in about 15 feet of water," he said.

Another motorist lost his 1973 model car a few feet from Puetz' mishap. He also escaped.

One other car dropped into the crack near Calumetville, but the bumper was still sticking out of the water. Ecker, who has a device for retrieving cars, is expected to get the cars out of the water today.

Streng said the crack is up to four and five feet wide in places.

Many issues await action at Manawa

BY CAROL DIEHL
Post-Crescent correspondent

MANAWA — The Feb. 1 meeting of the City Council will see aldermen voting on recommendations and issues discussed at last week's council meeting.

Ken Kelly, proprietor of the Manawa Cafe appeared before the council requesting the issuance of a license to sell bottled beer at the restaurant. Kelly has recently extended his hours of operation following renovation of the kitchen facilities. He stressed the fact that he did not wish to sell packaged goods.

After discussing the application, which is "something new" for the city, the council agreed to check the details with City Atty. DeLyle Orholt before deciding.

A decision on the proposed doctor's clinic building is also expected at the next meeting. Mayor George Jensen informed the council that "pre-packaged deals on office buildings" are also being reviewed. Gerhardt Handrich, the low bidder on the clinic designed by Phillips and Associates, Inc., municipal and consulting engineers from Kimberly, granted a 30 day extension on his bid price of $76,203.

A proposal for a raise in aldermen's salaries brought an exchange of opinions between Ald. Dean Clappes (1st), who recommended a raise for aldermen from $8 a meeting to $12, and a raise in the mayor's salary from $30 a month to $45, and Ald. Paul Sturm (4th), who said the same things are done as civic pride and that the city had enough costs besides the raising of the council's salaries. The council agreed to study the matter.

Mayor Jensen reported that R.A. Plotter Jr. has offered to purchase the 7½ acres of industrial development city-owned land south of Howard Street. The council requested that Jensen ask Plotter to come before the council to provide the aldermen with further information. Plotter has indicated that he desired "to build a shed" on the land.

Ald. Sturm, presented the police and fire commission recommendation for spending $875 to remodel and equip the police chief's office in the city hall. The council had agreed earlier to grant Police Chief Gene Forsythe's request to move the police quarters from the lower level of the city hall to the first floor.

Forsythe also told the Post-Crescent that an attempt to gain entrance to Heise Bros. on the night of Jan. 17 was unsuccessful with damage limited to door locks. The Waupaca County Sheriff's Department has the incident under investigation.

In other action during the council proceedings the aldermen:

—Granted the Manawa Jaycees authority to proceed with their plans for a torchlight snowmobile parade on Feb. 3 in conjunction with their week end Sno-Fest activities.

—Approved bartender licenses for William Klemm, route 1, Manawa; and Karen and Roger Topping, route 1, Weyauwega who will be working at Pete's Barn.

—Heard that plans for the third well will proceed when approval is granted from the state.

—Accepted Ken Kelly's offer to clean an area at the Polywog for a skating rink. Evan Rohde, city superintendent of public works said that city equipment could not do the job satisfactorily and Kelly volunteered to "Keep it clean for the kids" at no cost to the city.

Froehlich for limits on spending

WASHINGTON — Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Wis., has joined more than 20 congressmen in introducing a bill to set spending limits for each session of congress.

Similar to a bill introduced last year by Sen. William E. Brock, R-Tenn., it is the first bearing the name of Froehlich since he began his freshman term in the House.

Froehlich said his support of the measure is a first step toward carrying out a commitment to oppose excessive spending. "I was elected to Congress as a fiscal conservative," he said.

The bill would establish a joint congressional budget committee with members from the House and Senate committees that raise and spend funds. Before appropriations bills were enacted in any session the committee would set a "legislative budget" based on estimated federal revenues for the next fiscal year and on the President's budget.

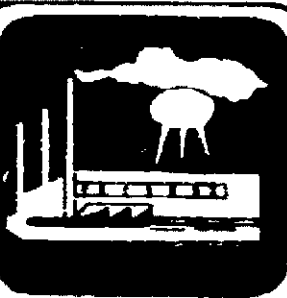

The bill also provides for 5-year cost estimates to be attached to presidential budget requests, 3-year limitations on congressional spending authorization, annual congressional renewal of actual fund appropriations and pilot-testing of major new federal programs before fullscale operation.

Froehlich said the proposal would make it easier for congress to avoid deficit spending.

Explosion's aftermath

This is the remains of one of the rental cottages at Mel's Cottages, south of the U.S. 10 bridge at Fremont, after an explosion Sunday caused by an apparent gas leak. Mel Baker, 66, had gone into the cottage to light a heater when the explosion occurred. (Post-Crescent photos)

Man injured in explosion at cottage

FREMONT — The owner of Mel's Cottage, Melvin Baker, 66, escaped serious injury Sunday morning when a minor explosion occurred in one of his units when he attempted to light a gas heater.

Baker was taken to Riverside Hospital in Waupaca, where he was treated for burns on his knees, hands and face and a deep head wound.

Baker was taken to the hospital by a neighbor, Don Biddison, whom he had summoned by telephone for help after the accident. When he arrived, Biddison said, he found Baker outside the building attempting to put out a fire in some clothing.

Baker said that he did not know what it was that struck him in the head causing the deep cut.

The Waupaca County Sheriff's department is investigating the incident.

Waupaca residents urged to bundle rubbish at landfill

WAUPACA — City residents who do their own rubbish hauling were cautioned this week by the Department of Public Works to take care in depositing items easily blown away.

"It just is not possible for the attendant at the landfill to keep up with the flying papers on a windy day," director Walter Hein said Friday. "There is no way to fight it. The fence helps keep the scraps from flying outside the fill area but at the close of a windy day — it is a sight."

He asked that loose papers be bundled before being deposited at the site.

"If residents do not take this precaution seriously, the city has a choice of invoking its anti-litter ordinance which carries a minimum fine of $10 and a maximum of $200, or making common carrier pickup mandatory," Hein commented. "We would prefer not to have to do either."

FREEDOM — A 35-year-old route 1 Kaukauna man became Outagamie County's first traffic fatality of 1973 when he was killed in a single-car crash along County Trunk E, one mile north of Freedom about 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

Three other persons in the vehicle were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Killed almost instantly was the driver, Donald D. Denny, 35, who was pinned in the vehicle when it flipped onto its top in a ditch. County police said the car was headed south on County Trunk E when it apparently

Dr. Caskey said he will not seek re-election because of personal reasons. He said he had enjoyed being a board member. He has been on the board for seven years and has served as director three years.

HILBERT — The Calumet County American Legion speaking contest will take place here at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, according to Elroy Spletter, New Holstein, contest chairman.

Participants are sponsored by posts at Brillion, Chilton, New Holstein and Sherwood.

Original orations of not more than 10 minutes, must relate to the United States Constitution. The winner here will advance to the Sixth District contest Feb. 10 at Ripon.

Judges, all teachers at Hilbert High School, will be Peter Eschenbauch, Chester Johnston and Linda Holmes.

Last year's winner, Sue Morgan, New Holstein, was runner-up in the district contest.

Town of Harrison may have three contests

SHERWOOD — Races for chairman, clerk and treasurer appear to be developing in the Town of Harrison, where several candidates took nomination papers over the week-end.

Challenging veteran chairman, George Schwalbach are Mrs. Mary B. Leader, Route 1, Menasha, and Joseph Luniak, Route 2, Menasha.

Mrs. Leader, a housewife, staged a vigorous write-in campaign for chairman in the last election. She has been involved with several fund-raising campaigns in the town, for public health organizations as well as Girl Scouting and the Calumet County Association for the Retarded Children.

Luniak, is a painting contractor, and is seeking his first political office.

Challenging clerk, Royal Gillis, is Both decisions were unanimous, according to chairman Royal Gillis.

The decisions were made after a public hearing conducted Jan. 13 at Harrison Town Hall after an appeal for variances was made by Thiel's, represented by attorney Robert Lutz, Chilton.

Building permits applied for last November were denied. The building to handle the whey bi-product from the dairy plant, according to Department of Natural Resources requirements, was built in the fall of 1971. The firm, however, was not under DNR orders. The ramp, used by Foremost Foods, Appleton, to collect the whey, was built in the spring of 1972.

Gillis said the board, in denying the appeal, noted that according to testimony given at the hearing, the construction of the ramp had been ordered stopped last spring, but a building permit was not sought until November.

Alois Thiel, former president of the firm who supervised the construction of the building, died in January, 1972. The project engineer also is deceased.

At the hearing the appeal board had questioned its power to grant variances after a violation had occurred. Lutz, who also is legal counsel for the Town of Harrison, said that according to the Calumet County zoning ordinance, the appeal board could grant a variance where there was an "unnecessary hardship or practical difficulty."

Calumet County Planner Roland Tonn

had argued that the practical difficulty had arisen after the structures were completed because Thiel's had not applied for building permits.

A petition with about 300 signatures saying the signers were in favor of the variances was presented at the hearing. Town officials agreed at the hearing to allow the ramp on the right-of-way, if Thiel's gave a "hold harmless" agreement and changed the structure in the event the three-rod-wide road was widened to four rods.

Members of the committee in addition to Gillis are James Weber, Town of New Holstein, and James Scholz, Town of Rantoul.

Further action will be up to the Calumet County Planning and Zoning Department.

Clintonville gets second revenue sharing check

CLINTONVILLE — The city has received its second federal revenue sharing check in the amount of $42,488. That, plus the first check for $44,277, amounts to $86,765 for the total revenue sharing for 1972 paid retroactively.

CMITY Clerk Lloyd Eggleston said the 1972 revenue sharing amounts will be placed in the revenue account to be used to pay bills of the 1972 budget when the books are closed at the end of this month.

The city will receive the 1973 revenue sharing amount in four checks throughout the year. The amount budgeted is $99,000, the amount the city expects the federal government will be giving it.

Bond reduced for man being held in burglary

CHILTON — Calumet County Circuit Judge Emil Arpin has reduced bond for Ronald E. Schwensau of Milwaukee, presently confined to Calumet County Jail on charges of armed burglary and theft.

After hearing motions to get a reduction of the bond which previously was set at $7,000, Arpin allowed the reduction to $1,500.

However, Schwensau still remains in jail. It was brought out at the hearing Friday afternoon that Schwensau is also being held on a federal warrant for a bank robbery, and the Department of Health and Social Services determined that Schwensau also was on parole for auto theft.

Schwensau, along with William Becklund, also of Milwaukee, are being held in connection with an incident at the Calumet Bottle Gas Co. in Hilbert Dec. 30, at which time over $2,000 in merchandise including guns was taken.

The two men were recently bound over to Calumet County Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing before County Judge D. H. Sebor.

Missing boy found after skating trip on Lake Winnebago

CHILTON — The Calumet County Sheriff's Department and a state conservation warden teamed up Sunday for a search for Keith Brounold, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brounold.

The youngster had left his home in the early afternoon for skating on Lake Winnebago, his parents said. When he failed to return about 4:30 p.m., they notified the authorities.

The boy was located about 6 p.m. by Warden Richard Streng, who found him about three miles off the Lake Park Road, near Fairy Springs. Keith apparently had stopped to talk to several fishermen, who were about to take him home when the warden arrived.

Heart Fund to begin drive at Embarrass

EMBARRASS — The village will join more than 1,800 other Wisconsin cities, villages and towns on Feb. 1, to officially open the Wisconsin Heart Association's 1973 Heart Fund, according to Mrs. Henry Conradt, who heads the fund raising drive here.

"Latest figures show that heart disease continues to be Wisconsin's number one killer, claiming more lives than all other causes combined," said the chairman. "Approximately one in every eight residents of Embarrass suffers from a heart or circulatory disorder, and nearly 25,000 Wisconsin's will die this year from these causes."

Contributions from past campaigns have helped medical researchers come closer to learning the causes and finding possible cures for heart and blood vessel disease, she explained. Heart Fund donations also help support public and professional education and community service programs.

"But much more needs to be done," Mrs. Conradt added. "The 1973 Heart Fund in Embarrass will continue to help Wisconsin Heart enable more scientists to search for the answers to heart disease. These gifts also will help year-round educational and service programs, sponsored by the Wisconsin Heart Association," she noted.

Changes in the 1973 feed grain program, which provides subsidy and price support payments for farmers, will be outlined at 1 p.m. Tuesday during a meeting at Pennings Country Club, Twelve Corners, for county community committeemen of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), according to Joseph Rickert, county ASCS executive director.

Police & fire beat

CLINTONVILLE — City police are investigating thefts of electronic equipment, sound equipment and 19 building letters which occurred recently.

Last Friday night, the building letters were taken from the Anne Street side of the Clintonville Community Hospital.

About $300 worth of electronic equipment was stolen from the Clintonville Tabernacle. The theft was reported Sunday morning by the Rev. Ronald Turner, pastor. Entrance to the church was gained through a basement door, and taken were an amplifier, microphone and speakers.

On Wednesday, it was discovered that about $300 worth of sound equipment was taken from the speaker's booth at the athletic field with entry apparently gained by the removal of one of the glass window panes facing the field. Stolen were an amplifier and a turntable.

Annual meeting held by St. Paul Lutheran Church at Wittenberg

WITTENBERG — A budget calling for expenditure of $23,965 for home purposes and $11,000 for missions was adopted this week during the annual meeting of St. Paul Lutheran Church.

New officers elected at the meeting are Erich Klaus, president; Wilmarth Thayer, vice president; Arthur Peterson, secretary; Marlin Block6, Stanley Gunderson, and Larry Sickler, board of elders; Carl Mavis, trustee; Harold E. Poocek, board of education; Evelyn Thayer, board of social ministry; David Schmidt, board of stewardship, and Lucille Krueger, board of evangelism.

Two other officers previously appointed are Ehardt Liesch, treasurer, and Donald O. P. Hanke, financial secretary.

Annual reports were given. It was noted that the congregation is completely debt free. The major improvement in the past year was the installation of new lighting in the church.

The congregation is also in the process of transferring ownership of the former school building to the Wittenberg Area Historical Society.

The Rev. Richard Borchers, pastor, reported that during the year 6 children and 2 adults were baptized; 13 young people and three adults were confirmed; there were 9 weddings and 11 funerals; 13 members transferred from the congregation and 15 transferred into it.

Recent cuts in farm storage facility loans for wet grain storage and termination of the Rural Environmental Assistance Program, will be discussed.

The meeting will precede a series of five public meetings in the county which will be conducted to explain how the 1973 feed grain program works, said Rickert.

Under Plan A of the program, farmers must set aside or idle 30 per cent of a historic feed grain base acreage on their land but may plant unlimited amounts of corn on the remainder of the land.

Under Plan B of the program farmers need set aside only 15 per cent of their base acreage but cannot plant more corn than they planted in 1972 and remain eligible for subsidy payments.

Easing of federal requirements would permit farmers to use idled acreage to graze cattle, according to Rickert.

All the public meetings will start at 1 p.m. and will be Thursday at First National Bank, Seymour; Friday, Silver Dome, Greenville; Jan. 29, Pleasant View Hall, Town of Deer Creek; Jan. 30, Darboy Club, Darboy; and Jan. 31, Freedom State Bank, Freedom.

Rickert said the liberalized 1973 feed grain program could increase the amount of corn production in the county.

Coroner investigates 188 deaths

Last year was the busiest year ever for the Outagamie County coroner's office. Officials investigated 188 deaths in 1972 compared to 164 in 1971 and 175 in 1969.

In his annual report issued today, Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said 127 of last year's deaths were due to natural causes, 44 were accidental, 15 were suicides and two were undetermined. Kemps' office investigates about one death in every five, with most requests for study made by police.

Traffic accidents accounted for 24 deaths, six more than the previous year and the most since 31 in record 1968. Of the 24, 16 were drivers and three of them were legally intoxicated when killed. One of the drivers killed was a 10-year-old bicyclist. Only one accident, in which two men died, involved

Gesell film will be shown

CHILTON — The "Let's Talk About Children" discussion is continuing at 9:30 a.m. Wednesdays, at the Calumet County Courthouse.

The film "Life With Baby" will be shown at this week's session. The film aims at a better understanding of the young child by adults and older children. The development of the mind and body are not separate processes. Dr. Arnold Gesell's work, as portrayed in this film, demonstrates clearly that human growth is a unified process involving the whole organism and following definite patterns. A discussion period will follow the showing of the film.

The series is being co-ordinated through the Calumet County Public Health Nurse's Office. There is no fee, the meetings are open to any interested persons and parents may bring their children.

No candidates have filed for Chilton's one school board post

CHILTON — No one as yet has secured papers for nomination to the Chilton School District, according to Donald Steege, school clerk.

Papers must be secured by the candidate declaring his intent to run for the board no later than 5 p.m. Jan. 23. Candidates' papers will be certified at the Feb. 5 school board meeting.

Under the new state law, school board members are chosen during the spring election on April 3. There is only one position open on the present board, now held by Herold Compton. He has not declared his intention to run.

If three or more should file for that office, a primary must be held in March.

Papers can be secured by Donald Steege, school clerk, or the administrator at the high school.

Conservationist knows about old mining pits

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A conservationist who went to a legislative committee hearing to urge that mining operators answer to the state told lawmakers he learned firsthand about mining practices in Florida when he fell into an abandoned rock quarry.

"I have personal knowledge of phosphate mining pits because I once fell in one," Martin Northrup, assistant executive director of the Florida Audubon Society, said recently.

"I don't know how much regional impact they have, but it certainly had an impact on me when I hit the bottom."

The state Environmental Land Management Study Committee, deliberating on whether miners should be exempted from proposed guidelines identifying developments of regional impact, didn't ask for a detailed explanation from Northrup.

CLINTONVILLE — The Dance Club mid-winter dance Saturday evening at Bennett's Supper Club.

Mr. Nixon's view of future

President Nixon's inaugural address summarized the mood of the nation, both in foreign relations and domestic affairs. But the President has set a difficult course for his second administration since this national mood could lead to a new isolationism in foreign affairs and a damaging across-the-board retrenchment in domestic affairs.

In the sphere of foreign relations, Mr. Nixon said the United States will honor its treaty commitments and continue in the era of negotiations which the President previewed in his 1969 inaugural address and which brought his 1972 trips to Peking and Moscow. But said Mr. Nixon:

"We shall do our share in defending peace and freedom in the world. But we shall expect others to do their share. The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs."

While Mr. Nixon did not refer directly to Vietnam in his address, there could hardly be a more precise description of the painful lesson of the long war in Southeast Asia and the national consensus which has emerged from it.

On the domestic side, the most quoted sentence from Mr. Nixon's address is his call, "In our own lives, let each of us ask — not just what will government do for me but what can I do for myself."

Again, Mr. Nixon summarized a national mood. But in this field, care, skill and leadership will be called for.

There is no question that great parts of bureaucracy have grown to a point of make-work or of not producing anything useful at all. And the first Nixon administration took a big step toward making government work better through federal revenue sharing to enable local and state governments to tackle problems directly without wasteful and delaying federal red tape.

But the federal government cannot turn its back on what must be done. For example, federal money must be provided for local governments to combat water pollution — and in greater amounts than Mr. Nixon has set through his cutback in the appropriation made by Congress over his veto last year. And the federal government cannot just tell the elderly, the ill, the handicapped and those without adequate vocational training to make it on their own.

What is called for, thus, is a sorting out of federal programs and a setting of national priorities as part of Mr. Nixon's goal of reducing bureaucracy and turning over more resources to state and local governments. This is a most difficult goal. Its accomplishment would earn a significant place in history for the second Nixon administration.

There's danger in guns

Supposing — just supposing — that you are the middle-aged father of a family just waking up one morning. You hear quite suddenly the sound of smashing wood downstairs, then the screams of your wife and teen-age daughter pleading for mercy. Moments later you are accosted by several men in street clothes with guns. Suppose you had a gun of your own, loaded and ready to use against such intrusion near your bed. What would you do?

Luckily it turned out that William Pine didn't have a gun. The men who did forced him into a corner with several guns aimed at his back and after fifteen or twenty minutes, they put away their weapons, looked embarrassed and withdrew.

There were plainclothes police officers conducting a surprise raid on an alleged narcotics hideout — only they had swarmed into the wrong house in the right block.

It's bad enough that police officers could make such a mistake or that they even would move into a home without announcing why or giving any evidence (unless their guns could be called evidence) of their authority. It's worse when one considers how many innocent people in the country do have armed guns in the bedroom ready to open deadly fire — and probably be shot in return in this case — without asking to see credentials.

Labelling of food packages

The Food and Drug Administration has issued regulations that require more precise labeling of ingredients in packaged food as well as imposing restrictions on claims that certain products will or won't do certain things for those who consume them.

Any food for which a nutritional claim is made must list the amounts of calories, proteins, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals present in an average serving as well as any extra nutrients which may have been added. Claims that organically grown foods prevent, treat or cure diseases would be prohibited — unless it could be proved that they do — and there would have to be more specific restrictions upon the use of such words as "natural", "artificial" and "imitation".

The regulations are necessary to prevent Americans from generally taking the view that little can be believed about advertising or promotion of products. Buyer-beware attitudes from those who manufacture or refine foods for human consumption are something we can do without. Many packaged foods offer cooks the advantages of easy preparation and convenience as well as flavor and nutritional appeal. But if the label is merely a facade or a pretty covering, promotion in the long run is self-defeating. This goes for the organic substances as well, currently in vogue somewhat in reaction to the convenience foods. In the light of recent orders from the FDA to food companies, the misleading pictures on packages as to content are equally foolish.

Labeling products does not guarantee that purchasers will be protected. They have to read and understand what they read. But at least they have the opportunity to do so.

Air pollution in Venice

Those optimists — or the myopic — who insist that pollution isn't really a major threat might consider the situation near Venice, Italy.

Porto Marghera is an industrial area north of the famed lagoons and city. More than 200 companies operate a variety of businesses. Some have complied with suggestions and then orders to install equipment to curb air and water polluting effluents. Some have not.

Last week the provincial Labor Office ordered that all industries in the area provide their workers with gas masks.

The howls are aplenty. Companies that have made attempts to keep things clean don't want to go to the added expense of getting the gas masks which cost about $30 apiece and aren't even available right now. Delinquent industries expect that regulations will be tightened and enforced. Italians considering a bill to provide money to prevent floods in the area wonder why worry when the air is now so filthy.

The order is no joke nor was it issued merely to dramatize how bad things are near Venice. There is such a thing as "marble cancer," the local term for the destruction of priceless art by the corroding substances in the air. "If the muck in the air gets at marble and bronze in the city across the lagoon, imagine what it does to our lungs here," said one Neapolitan. Those who don't work in the factories want gas masks too if things are so bad. Plans to evacuate children may come next.

The dangers are real. Americans living near any industrial area need not be smug. Unless constant watch is maintained, both in and out of industry, it could happen here.

John Wyngaard

Weaver breach with Lucey final

MADISON — When John Carrier Weaver was granted his doctorate, the document certified that his major field of study was geography.

But recent events seem to suggest that he does not understand the lay of the land in politics, some of the more sardonic wits in the statehouse are remarking.

The University of Wisconsin president's unexpected speech to the university regents in which he complained about the effort of Gov. Patrick J. Lucey to embarrass him and to impugn his work as chief administrator of the vast state-supported higher education is one of the curious developments of the season. That the president should then immediately express surprise about the stir he precipitated adds to the strange flavor.

He said Lucey has been hostile and unfair, that his position has been made more difficult as a consequence, and he asked for a reappraisal of his work and his worth by his governing board.

He's unusually sensitive

Reflective if puzzled onlookers will wonder if the president's troubles were not foreordained by the circumstances accompanying his selection two years ago, combined with his unusual sensitivity, as one of the regents described it. The presidential outburst before the regents could probably be better understood if the answers to several questions could be known, including:

1. Did Mr. Weaver know when he was invited to leave the presidency of the University of Missouri shortly before the Wisconsin election for governor two years ago that there was an election scheduled here, that everybody in Wisconsin knew at the time that it would be close at best, and that the Republican party represented by the regents who then as now ruled the university stood a good chance of losing?

2. When it turned out in fact that the party whose agents recruited and elected him and arranged for some extraordinary severance compensation in his employment contract lost the election, did anyone suggest to the president that it would be diplomatic, foresighted and courteous, to call upon the governor-elect to discuss policy objectives?

3. Did it then occur to him that in the ordinary course of constitutional succession the new governor's appointees would ultimately control the board and thus determine his tenure no later than four years after his arrival?

The Weaver speech to the regents, giving all the evidence of care and deliberation although it surprised other high-ranking officers as much as private onlookers, is now being widely interpreted as signaling a breach with the governor. Successive amplifications and qualifications, indeed, merely strengthen the original impression, whatever Weaver's intention.

Perplexing and disappointing

All of which is clearly an unfortunate train of events and will disappoint alumni and perhaps a good share of the faculty and students while it perplexes the electorate.

There is a certain imperturbability in the governor's makeup that is manifested on such occasions. He has said nothing — with considerable effect. He has no real power within the university. Pre-Lucey regents have it. There is nothing that he can say that would be useful or beneficial to him. But if President Weaver persists in his distressed commentaries, it appears likely that he can only damage his own cause. Like the governor, he lives in a highly translucent glass house.

Inevitably there will be a parallel drawn from the Glenn Frank episode in 1937, at about the time that John Weaver was entering graduate school. Gov. Phil LaFollette wanted President Frank out. He controlled the regents and they fired Frank. Nobody will ever know what effect that had on the electorate.

But everybody in politics recalls that LaFollette lost the next election a year later.

Slang can be aid to good expression

A college teacher of English in Florida writes to ask why I never use slang in the column. "Do you object to it as a general principle," he wants to know, "or is there some special reason?"

As a general principle, I don't object to it at all. Some slang can be fresh and pungent and more descriptive than Standard English. Used properly, and with discretion, slang provides a vital infusion into the language.

What I object to, however, is not only slang that quickly becomes a tiresome cliché, but the use of slang words to conceal rather than to express. This is a violation of all that human communication should stand for.

For example, I have noted in the past that criminal jargon is one of the largest sources of slang, and has always been. This is not because it has so much vitality and piquancy, as because it enables us to camouflage the essential cruelty or dishonesty of what we are doing.

Criminals never "kill"—they blot out or rub out or erase or hit or make a contract to remove somebody. They never "steal"—they hoist or heist or score or swipe or snatch.

Recently I read an article from Vietnam about the verbs U.S. soldiers use to describe killing the enemy—all of them just as slangily euphemistic as the words criminals use. It's just the reverse of officialese, in which bombing and killing are made to read like the annual report of a corporation. (An "anti-personnel weapon" sounds almost respectable.)

A teen-ager today may boast to her friends, "I ripped off a bracelet in a store," and she is using this modern jargon to soften the impact of the real word, which is "stole." She wouldn't say she stole it, but "ripped off" makes this dishonest act seem gallant and bold and defiant toward the establishment.

Jargon words make it too easy for criminals to label themselves "commandos" or "terrorists" and assume the cloak of political rebels, when in truth they are most often old-fashioned villains and brigands utilizing a strained political situation to rob, loot, burn and kill. If a man can call himself a "Crusader" and march under the slogan, "God Wills It," he can in good conscience pillage the countryside and murder the heathen.

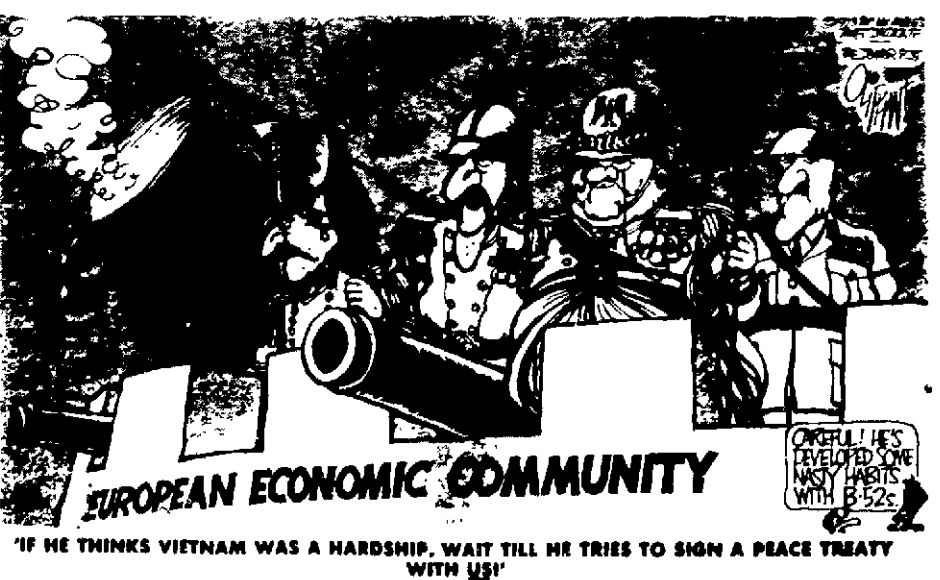

Like all language, there is good slang and bad slang: the good makes the object truer and clearer; the bad makes the object fuzzier and falsifies to reality. And, alas, for every one word that is invented to show the object in a new light, a dozen are devised to disguise evil.

Nixon gambling on place in history

Now that he has been sworn in for another term, and barring any mishap, Richard Nixon will be President of the United States until January, 1977. And when he finally leaves office, his career will span some 30 years from the time he first jumped into national prominence as the young Congressman who unmasked Alger Hiss.

Obviously, it is too early to judge Richard Nixon's place in history. But it is fair to say that history will have to accord him considerable attention. Indeed, by January, 1977, Nixon will have served more years (16) as President or Vice President than any other man in American history. What is more, he will have been a White House hopeful or national party nominee in six successive Presidential elections (if you include 1964, when he made a few stabs at compromise candidate status).

Other presidents

Hitherto, no American has held top national office over such a long period of time as Nixon: Vice President for eight years from 1953-1961, then President from 1969 to 1977. Most of our 20th Century Presidents have been men who occupied their high positions during a single decade or comparable short period of time: William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Warren Harding, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson. Only a few national-level careers have spanned a longer period. Dwight Eisenhower was Supreme Allied Commander in 1944, a bipartisan Presidential prospect in 1948, and President from 1953 to 1961.

And the greatest of all, Franklin D. Roosevelt, ran for Vice President on the Democratic ticket in 1920, became Governor of New York in 1928 and then served as President from 1933 to 1945. His national career spanned a quarter of a century, just as Nixon's should.

Roosevelt's name is engraved in history as the leader who presided over the years of America's greatest social, economic and political upheaval — the man who gave the nation a new direction at home and abroad. It seems safe to say that Richard Nixon's goals, however disputable ideologically, are of similar magnitude. His first term shifted U.S. foreign policy from its 20-year old Cold War pattern and opened up a new era of detente with Russia and China. And if early signs are any clue, the President's second term will aim at rolling back the choking tide of Federal government programs, bureaucracies, spending, and taxes.

Some critics accuse the President of hubris, of getting a swollen head from his 61 per cent election triumph. But I suspect his decision to fight to turn the tide of Federal domestic programming and spending (and to challenge Congress in the process) was made well before he actually achieved his stunning victory. If he had wanted to take the easy path through the next four years, he could have rested on his laurels, pursued a bevy of "good government"-type policies, placated the Establishment liberals who hate and fear him, and won some fashionable media plums as a new "mature" Nixon. Instead, he has chosen to begin a grueling struggle that will bring new buckets of vituperation sloshing down on his head.

And if he fails...

Whether or not the President succeeds in this combat will probably determine how history ranks his years in

Clarification re hearing aids

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Your Jan. 8th issue inaugurated a new feature, HELP-MATE, designed "as a last resort for people who have exhausted other available means to obtain suitable action or information."

Unfortunately, an accompanying explanatory lead article failed to inform readers that this is a syndicated feature and is not a local Post-Crescent staff feature and that the problems dealt with therein are not in most cases those of local residents.

The very first HELP-MATE article concerning a lady's difficulty with a door to door hearing aid salesman has apparently caused many Post-Crescent readers to associate the story with our firm, Haviland Hearing Aids.

Since our reputation is our most valuable asset we would be grateful if you would correct the damage inadvertently caused by this article.

We wholeheartedly condemn such shabby sales practices and would like to advise your readers that anyone who feels they have a just complaint against any Hearing Aid Dealer has a much more effective recourse than writing to HELP-MATE. The same letter sent to the State Licensing Board, Madison, Wisconsin, will bring much faster and more effective action.

We also hope that any reader contemplating the purchase of a hearing aid will not be put off by the exorbitant prices mentioned in the article. They are in no way typical.

Your HELP-MATE adviser further suggested that a hearing aid purchaser request a 10 day moneyback guarantee in writing. This is rather naive advice. An unscrupulous dealer that would not provide proper service certainly would not be likely to refund the purchasers money.

For over five years we have advertised weekly in The Post-Crescent, "DON'T PAY THE BILL, UNTIL COMPLETELY SATISFIED." We still think it's the best way.

Peace talk is boring

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I wonder if anyone besides me is getting tired of hearing the news on radio ten or twelve times a day where the Paris peace talks are the first and most important news. I figure I have heard the same thing on radio at least 800 times besides the newspapers and television.

I agree that the peace talks are important but I don't see where we are any nearer to peace than we were two and one half months ago. I have also read several times about what a super duper diplomat Henry Kissinger is. I've not seen any results of either.

You hear news that some progress has been made in the peace talks and that they have stepped up the bombing at the same time. It doesn't make sense to me. I suggest that they all quit the propaganda and start printing and broadcasting the news and forget the peace talks 'til they have something to report.

It is my opinion that you can't believe ten per cent of what you hear or read.

I wanted to thank you long before this for the extremely generous public service contribution of space in The Post-Crescent for the Christmas season CARE appeal.

The Nicaraguan earthquake emergency came along right after that, and the response just kept right on.

We now count $1,020 on coupons from the Appleton area and another $150 from Neenah and a group of smaller places such as Iola. All of those earmarked "earthquake" or "Nicaragua" are not included in those figures, since I thought those, while the ad must have made it easy to find the CARE address, it probably was not the primary motivator.

Whenever I think CAREtaking is just another job, someone like yourself comes along with a big boost like The Post-Crescent quarter-page ad. The response was better than from any other newspaper in Wisconsin, and I get the feeling that with friends like you we are doing something worthwhile. You know, CARE HAD BEEN IN Nicaragua for five years — the earthquake only dramatized a need already there — you were willing to support the day-to-day CARE operation, which however well we respond to crisis, is how we'll really get the 'havenots' on their feet.

take care...

St. Louis teacher join Philadelphia, Chicago in strikes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A strike by public school teachers in St. Louis — the first in the city's history — was called for today as similar walkouts continued in Philadelphia and Chicago.

Members of St. Louis Teachers Union Local 420 and the St. Louis Teachers Association, with both groups representing 2,800 members, authorized the strike in separate votes Sunday.

Despite a walkout, a spokesman for the school board said classes would be held for the system's 103,000 pupils attending 165 elementary and high schools.

About 400 teachers belong to either group.

In all three cities, pay raises are a key issue.

The St. Louis teachers have been demanding raises in bargaining sessions which have been under way since November. Their demands include a raise in the starting salary from $7,200 to $8,200. They also want a paid hospitalization program and a collective bargaining agreement.

The school board said money is not available for salary increases but the teachers claim it can be taken from a $3.9 million cash reserve.

Elsewhere, court proceedings were to begin today against 24 officials of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, the group leading a walkout which has started into its third week.

The union officials were named in criminal contempt proceedings for refusing to obey a court order to end the walkout.

Union officials claim the walkout has been 90 per cent effective but the school board reported that more and more teachers will drift back to work as the stoppage continues.

About 1,500 of the system's 13,000 teachers reported for work when the strike began Jan. 8 and more than 3,000 were on the job Friday. The school system has 285,000 students.

The teachers are demanding a $9,300 starting salary and the board is offering $8,900.

Negotiators for teachers in Chicago, who have been on strike since Jan. 10, say three major issues remain unsettled in that walkout and that the school board can not "buy us off with a salary increase alone."

The Chicago Teachers Union rejected a 2½ per cent pay increase because the board's latest offer did not include demands for smaller class size, more preparation periods for elementary instructors and a shorter school year with no cut in pay.

Present salaries range from $9,600 to $16,000 a year.

The strike has idled 650 schools serving about 558,000 pupils.

Insurance officials told of required number on accident reports

MADISON — James O. Peterson, administrator of the division of motor vehicles, has informed automobile insurance representatives of a change in information required on accident report forms which are filed by or for drivers of cars involved in accidents which result in death, injury or damage totaling more than $200.

As a result of the recent changeover to a new uniform traffic accident reporting form by police, traffic accidents are now being assigned an individual number, which must also be included on report forms filed by drivers of vehicles involved. Peterson said insurance representatives should make certain they check with local law enforcement agencies to obtain the accident number before filing accident reports for their policy holders.

Since Jan. 1, law enforcement officers across the state have been using a new uniform report form which includes considerably more information on type and causes of accidents, damage to vehicles, and injuries which result from accidents.

Condition of Dr. Knutson in incurable illness is stabilized

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Dr. Kent S. Knutson, stricken president of the American Lutheran Church (ALC), was to be moved from St. Marys Hospital in Rochester to a Minneapolis hospital today.

Dr. Knutson has been hospitalized since last October with a rare disorder of the central nervous system. The move to Minneapolis would put the 48-year-old ALC leader closer to his suburban Minneapolis home and wife and six children.

Mayo Clinic physicians have said Dr. Knutson's once-rapid deterioration has stabilized, but that there is no known cure for the affliction.

Mayo physicians haven't specified what the disease is, but published reports based on interviews with medical sources have said the ALC leader is dying of Jakob Cruetzfeld disease.

That disease is a relentless deterioration of the nerve cells of the brain and spinal cord, resulting in progressive loss of mental functions, particularly speech and memory, and of muscular coordination, marked by involuntary muscular jerking.

It is a rare, fatal and noncontagious disease and its cause is unknown.

A study of 150 reported cases of Jakob Cruetzfeldt from all over the world showed that all resulted in death and that there is no known way of altering the course of the disease. Death usually occurs within 18 months.

Dr. Knutson was elected to lead the 2.5 million member ALC two years ago. The ALC Church Council Dec. 28 formally decided that Dr. Knutson was unable to serve as ALC president at the time, and appointed the Rev. Dr. David W. Preus, vice president, as acting president.

Demonstrator downed

Madison protest leaders disappointed at turnout

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — While President Nixon's second inauguration was proceeding flawlessly in Washington Saturday, more than 1,000 persons demonstrated against the war here in a march one protest leader complained was too small.

Madison police reported no incidents and no arrests.

Demonstrators assembled at the University of Wisconsin Library mall, then walked to the state Capitol along the route prescribed in their parade permit. The march began with about 500 participants, but swelled as splinter groups joined in.

Kwame Salter, director of the UW's Afro-American Center, said he was disappointed both with the size of the protest and the small proportion of blacks in the group.

"I remember when we could call an antiwar demonstration and people would spill out onto the street," he said. "Both the size and the spirit of the demonstrations has shrunk since then."

In Appleton, about 50 young persons gathered near the Lawrence University campus to hear antiwar speeches, then marched on the Post-Crescent to protest.

They demanded to meet the paper's editor, but talked instead to a reporter who accepted their printed statement.

Bill protects drinker who overdraws

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Drinkers who overestimate the size of their checking accounts would be protected from criminal prosecution under a bill being considered by a committee of the North Dakota Legislature.

The bill, introduced at the request of the states attorneys association, is sponsored by freshman Rep. Dean Winkjer of Williston.

All rights to collect on a bad check through civil action would remain intact, he added.

"As I understand it, the association feels that a check that has been issued to a bar by a man who has had a couple of drinks should not be held as criminal because of insufficient funds in the account," Winkjer said.

(Note: Doctors' tests have proved Preparation H actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. It's so effective that in many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from pain and itching in such tissues. There's no other formula like Preparation H.)

Portuguese Guinea rebel leader slain

By LARRY HEINZERLING Associated Press Writer

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Reports from Guinea accuse Portuguese agents of the assassination of Amilcar Cabral, the leader of the rebellion in Portuguese Guinea.

Cabral was killed Saturday night by "Portuguese agents," according to an emotional broadcast Sunday by President Sekou Toure of Guinea, a country bordering the Portuguese province on the western bulge of Africa.

Toure said Cabral, 47, was assassinated by "paid killers" outside his home in Conakry, the capital of Guinea. He said the "principal killers" had been arrested.

The Portuguese government declined to comment.

There was speculation that the leadership of Cabral's independence movement — the African Independence Party of Guinea and Cape Verde, or PAIGC — would pass to his half brother Luis or to Aristides Pereira. Luis runs the PAIGC office in Dakar and Pereira the Conakry headquarters.

Foreign Minister John Malecela of Tanzania said the liberation struggle in the Portuguese province would continue despite Cabral's death. He recalled the assassination in 1969 of Eduardo Mondlane, the leader of the liberation movement in Portuguese Mozambique, and said his movement is stronger today than ever before.

Cabral, soft spoken and easy going in manner, was the first leader of a rebel movement to be granted official observer status at the United Nations. He said in a speech last fall at U.N. headquarters that he planned to proclaim a new nation in the rebel-controlled parts of Portuguese Guinea.

He had run a guerrilla war of independence in Portuguese Guinea from his Conakry headquarters for the past nine years.

Cabral's home, a two-story building shaded by mango trees, was the target of a bazooka attack in 1970 during the Portuguese "invasion" of Guinea. He was out of the country at the time, but a Yugoslav doctor was killed when a shell struck the house next door.

His movement claims control of two-thirds of the rural areas of Portuguese Guinea, a territory slightly larger than Maryland and Delaware that is sandwiched between Senegal and Guinea.

It is an impoverished land of swamps and grasslands with a population of about 800,000 plus 30,000 Portuguese troops.

Cabral, backed by Soviet arms and supplies, established jungle schools and hospitals and a judicial system in the "liberated zones."

Despite his Marxist views, Western diplomats in Africa generally agreed that he was not a Soviet puppet. He himself often complained because no one but the Russians would give him aid.

Cabral, an agronomist, was trained at the University of Lisbon and returned to Bissau, the capital of Portuguese Guinea, in 1952 to work as a census taker. He was one of 14 Africans to acquire a university degree under the Portuguese regime.

He turned against the colonial administration and with five others formed PAIGC. They began organizing strikes and demonstrations.

When the Portuguese killed 50 dockworkers during a strike, Cabral began planning armed revolution and mapped out a campaign to mobilize the countryside. He moved to Conakry in 1958 to organize the rebellion, which began in earnest in 1963.

State returns more tax revenue to local municipalities in 1971

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—In 1971, Wisconsin returned almost two-thirds of its collected taxes to individuals and local governments, the Department of Revenue said recently.

The department's annual tax publication indicated 63.3 per cent of tax revenues were returned to municipalities.

The figure was up from 62.6 per cent in 1970, the department said.

State per capita tax income for 1971 was $3,233, up seven per cent from 1970.

State per capita property value as set at $7,875, an 11 per cent increase from 1970, the report said.

Science in daily life

By JAY SHARBUTT
NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC Television network is starting a new science series tonight called "What About Tomorrow?" They announced it by mental telepathy, so they may really be on to something big.
Actually, they didn't tout it that way.

They used the phone. But if the shows prove a success, it wouldn't surprise me to see the series out probing the world of extrasensory perception some day.
The basic theme of the series is the effect of science and technology on our daily lives. It's a broad, difficult assignment, but the producers have some fair academic help.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology is collaborating with ABC on all the six half-hour shows now planned, providing both on-and off-camera assistance for each program.
The series won't give aid and comfort to modern-day Luddites, whose English ancestors had the idea that the machine age could be halted simply by smashing the machine.

But it may ease the secret and not-so-secret fears of those among us who think coming generations will have to be born perforated so as not to annoy the computer.

In fact, the first show — airing at 9:30 p.m. CST tonight — deals with new computer technology and its potential for good. Entitled "On the Side of Man," it more than stresses the positive.

That seems its only flaw. I wish the series called for an hour's examination of both the abuses and benefits of science and technology — Dr. Strangelove versus the Good Guys, if you will.

But the producers do the best they can in 30 minutes and get off to a good start, particularly with a segment about MIT scientists trying to broaden the language of the computer.

Oddly enough, the segment sharply illustrates how imprecisely we convey our thoughts: it should be shown to students for whom three grunts and a shrug constitutes a sentence.

Another good episode involves children "teaching" computers to form geometric shapes and in the process getting what an MIT scientist calls "a taste of the beauty and power of mathematics."

The new series, which will appear once a month, comes none too late, according to Dr. Jerome Wiesner, president of MIT and former science advisor to the late President John F. Kennedy.

"In my own view, there is a desperate need for people to get a better understanding of the things now going on in science and hopefully learn a little bit about how science works," he said.

"There's a growing anti-science, anti-technology movement at the moment that I think can be very damaging to society if we don't bring it under control."

Benefit performance
Mick Jagger leads the Rolling Stones through a succession of numbers at the Forum in Inglewood, Cal., last Thursday night in a benefit for victims of the Nicaraguan earthquake. A crowd of 18,600 paid from $10 to $100 and in contrast to many past performances by the group, it was generally orderly. Over $500,000 was raised. (AP Wirephoto)

Great special on dogs

7-8 Channels 9-11 — Jane Goodall And The World Of Animal Behavior
The wild dogs of Africa are certainly one of the finest dramatic animal films to play on television. Jane Goodall and her husband, photographer Hugo van Lawick, became interested in African wild dogs while doing a book on hvenas. They spent four months shooting this and they zero in on a dramatic story. One pack of dogs is dominated by a female — Havoc — who forces out another female — Angel — after both have a litter of puppies. Havoc kills all of Angel's pups except one — Solo. This film records the attempt to survive by Angel and Solo.

7-8 Channels 2-7 — Gunsmoke has a romantic, teary tale which really puts Newly (Buck Taylor) into his new profession. medicine. It also gives him a wife, for a while. The plot is one that has been done before, mostly on medical shows, but it works. Jess Walton plays Newly's radiant bride-to-be who is discovered to have leukemia (here described as newly-discovered).

7-8 Channel 5 — Sammy Davis Jr. returns to Rowan And Martin's Laugh In and once again plays the white wigged "de judge."

Wingra quint at Weyauwega

WEYAUWEGA — Weyauwega Fremont area middle schools and high schillo bands will present their annual guest artist concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Middle Schillo Gym.

The Wingra Woodwind Quintet of the University of Wisconsin-Madison will be the guest performing artist.

The Wingra Woodwind Quintet, composed of faculty members of the University of Wisconsin School of Music was formed in 1965. Since its formation the Wingra Quintet has performed throughout the United States to enthusiastic audiences.

Wingra Quintet members include Robert Cole, former flutist with the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Philadelphia Woodwind Quintet.

Carolyn Pollak, oboist, graduated from Indiana University, and has performed with the San Antonio Symphony.

Glenn Bowen, clarinetist, holds degrees from the University of Arkansas and Eastman School of Music.

Richard Lottridge, bassoonist, came to Wisconsin in 1965 after seven years as a member of the Chicago Symphony.

John Barrows, termed "one of the greatest horn players in the world" has had a long performing career, performing with the Minneapolis Symphony among many other groups.

Tickets may be purchased from any band member, or at the door. The public is invited to attend this performance.

8-8:30 Channels 2-7 — Elsa Lanchester's delightfully zany comedy is a great foil for Lucille Ball on Here's Lucy. Elsa plays Mumsey, in prison for a bank heist. Lucy is hired to become a cellmate and find out where Mumsey has stashed the loot.

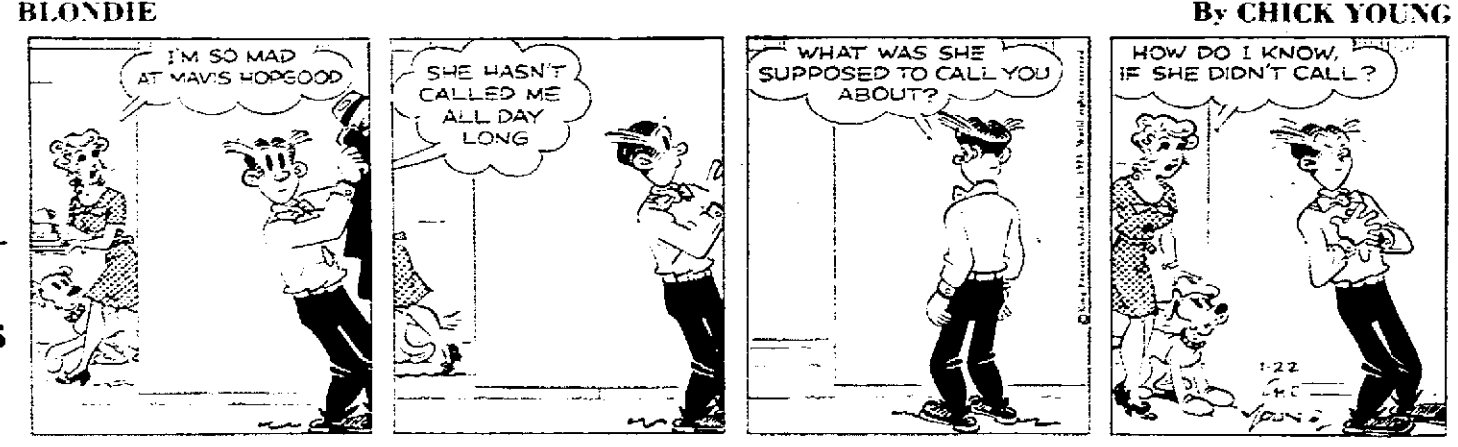

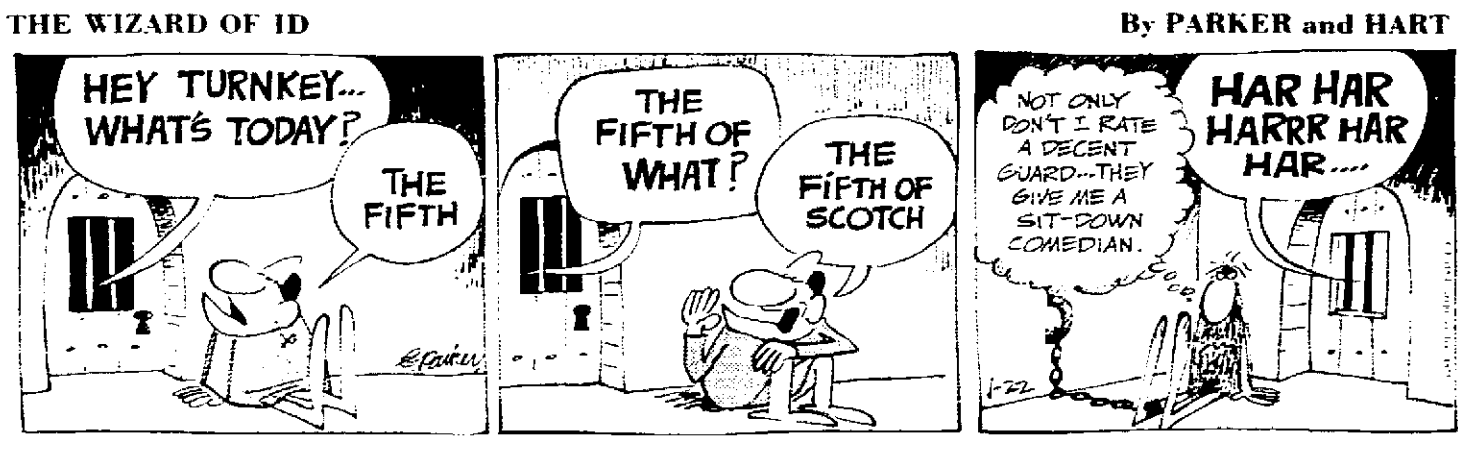

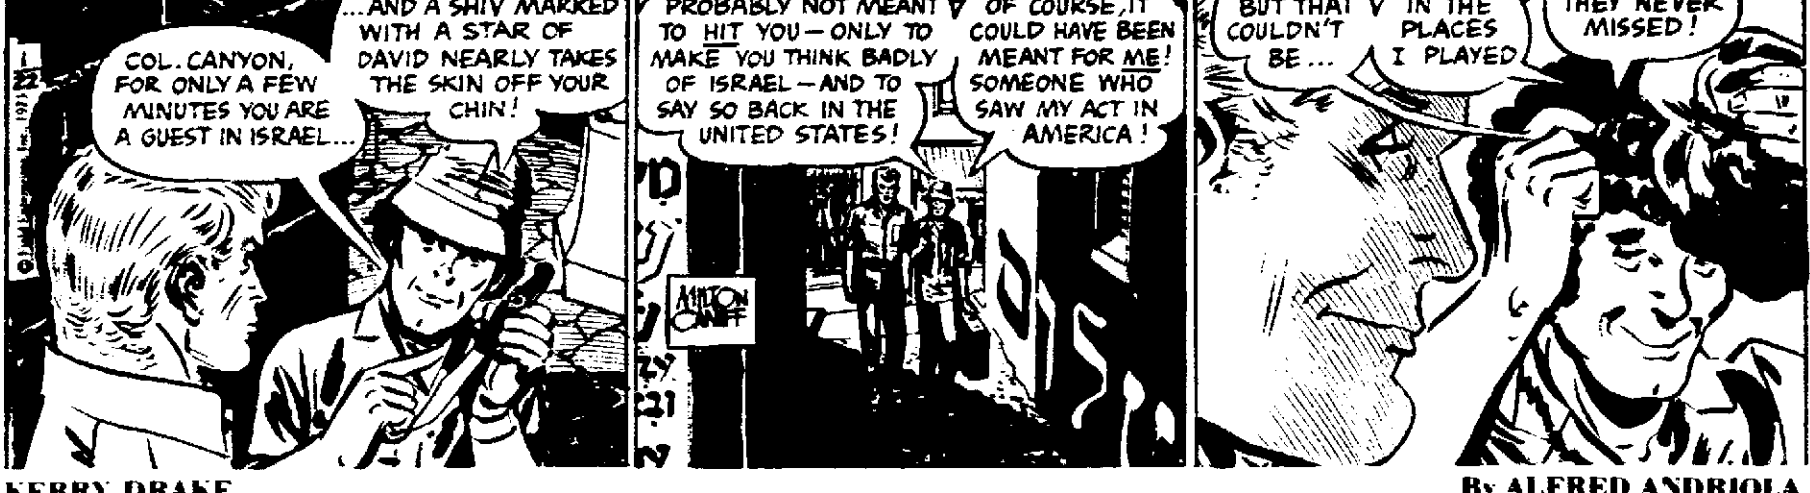

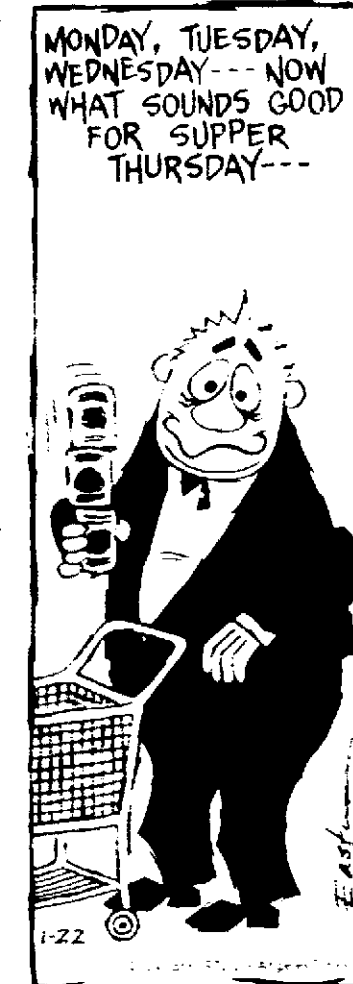

8:30-9 Channel 2 — It's time for the annual fashion show on The Doris Day Show, but this year's plot has more substance. Doris volunteers to put on the show to help out Peter Lawford, her doctor beau, who has promised a fund raiser for the hospital.

9-10 Channels 2-7 — Tim Conway, who is making so many guest appearances on TV, he seems to be everyone's regular, brightens The Bill Cosby Show, appearing in a skit, with Bill and Rosey Grier, as the man who invented the game of basketball.

9:30-10 Channels 9-11 — "On the Side of Man" is the first presentation in the News series What About Tomorrow? which explores the effects of science and technology on our daily lives. Produced in collaboration with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and hosted by science editor Jules Bergman, the premiere episode focuses on the machines of technology, the computer and its relation to man.

Most Powerful Loud-speaking System: The world's most powerful loudspeaking system is at the Ontario Motor Speedway in California. It has 355 horn speakers so announcements can be heard by as many as 230,000 people above the noise of 50 screaming racing cars.

Long-living Ponies: Ponies live longer than horses. The oldest age for a horse is about 33 years, but a pony lived to 34 years in France in 1919, and now in Wales a pony is reported to be 66 years old.

Most Bee Stings: The most bee stings a man has ever survived is 2,443. The attack occurred in Rhodesia on Jan. 28, 1962 to Johannes Riecke. (Copyright, 1973)

Wall street offering customer safeguards

A tough new rule clamping down on the ways your broker can use the cash and securities you, the customer, leave with his firm went into effect a few days ago. It is nicknamed the "Needham Rule," in honor of James J. Needham, who spearheaded the task force that created it when he was with the Securities & Exchange Commission and who has since become chairman of the New York Stock Exchange itself.

It is part of a whole network of safeguards being erected in the wake of the Wall Street crisis of 1969-70 to protect you against a failure of your brokerage firm. As such, it demands your attention — and thus this Q. & A. to alert you.

Q. How does this rule fit into customer safeguards?

A. The key legislation is the Securities Investors Protection Act of 1970, which seeks to protect you against being financially hurt by the liquidation of the brokerage firm to which you have entrusted your securities and cash, just as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. protects you against being financially hurt by the liquidation of the bank to which you have entrusted your deposits. SIPC is the umbrella under which this new rule was logically developed.

How are you protected

Q. How does SIPC protect you, a brokerage firm's customer, with securities and cash in the safekeeping of your broker?

A. Should a member of SIPC (a federally chartered corporation) go into liquidation, SIPC will advance up to $50,000 per account on customer claims — with the $50,000 limit taking effect after the return of your fully paid securities which are in the broker's possession or under his control.

For cash, your protection is limited to $20,000 per account.

Through assessments on SIPC members, the securities industry is raising a $150 million insurance fund. In addition, SIPC has a huge $1 billion line of credit from the U.S. Treasury.

Q. Now, what does the new rule do?

A. It makes sure that your securities and cash are kept separate from the firm's own operating funds. Your broker can use your funds only in those areas of his business which are related to servicing customers — for instance, in financing loans to other customers. He cannot use your funds to finance his own activities, such as trading for his firm's own account or underwriting.

Q. How does the rule achieve this?

A. There are several safeguards, including required reports from brokers to the stock exchanges and other regulatory bodies and periodic checkups by exchange examiners and independent public accountants.

Customer's obligation

Q. Has the customer any obligation under the new rule?

A. Yes. When you, a customer (individual or institutional), sell securities, you must deliver them to your broker promptly, and, in any event, you are expected to deliver your securities by the settlement date for the transaction. If you have not completed delivery by 10 business days after the settlement date, your broker is required to close out your sale and you are responsible for any loss he suffers as a result.

Q. In sum, what does this new rule mean to me?

AEC upholds Point Beach capacity hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Requests that licensing of the Point Beach, Wis., No. 2 nuclear generator at increased capacity be reconsidered were denied Thursday.

The Atomic Energy Commission's Licensing Appeals Board reaffirmed its recommendation that a three-month license be issued to operate the reactor near Two Rivers at 75 per cent of capacity pending a study into a fuel rod problem.

The No. 2 generator at the plant owned by the Wisconsin Electric Power Co. has been operating at 20 per cent of capacity, and the appeals board said running the plant at the increased level while the problem was being studied would not present a safety hazard.

Environmental groups had expressed fears of ecological harm by the facility, while the AEC staff had contended issuing a license at this time would violate rules of procedure.

The president of Wisconsin Electric, John Quale, said the AEC director of regulation normally issues a license within 10 days of such authorization.

"The operation of Unit 2 at this output should significantly reduce the rate and the amount of gas, oil and coal being burned at less efficient plants," Quale said.

Mrs. Gillespie fills Library Board vacancy

The City Council has confirmed the appointment of Mrs. Jack W. Gillespie, 2721 N. Viola St., to fill a vacancy on the Appleton Library Board. Mayor James Sutherland presented the nomination to the council for confirmation. Mrs. Gillespie replaces the former board president, the Rev. Paul Olm, who recently left the city to accept a new ministerial assignment. The term expires in July, 1974.

A. In the words of Needham, "What we are building with this regulation and others in the 1970 law is the most comprehensive regulatory program ever devised for the safekeeping of customers' funds and securities by brokerage houses."

Q. Then can customers be confident of 100 per cent protection against brokerage firm failures?

A. No, there is no system that is foolproof. For the vast majority of brokerage accounts, though, the $50,000 and $20,000 limits do amount to 100 per cent protection.

And this is certainly a spectacular improvement over the defenses of only a few years ago.
